

Over plans for quick economy boost

Carter-Burns clash nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Burns says he intends to cooperate with the Carter administration and the new Congress, but the Federal Reserve Board chairman also warns against any Democratic efforts to give the economy a quick boost.

Burns told the Senate Banking Committee on Thursday that there is a "clear need" for expansion of the economies of industrial nations. But he said the traditional methods of economic stimulation could be counterproductive.

President-elect Jimmy Carter has said he would consider a tax cut if the economy does not pick up before he takes office in January.

Burns, 72, whose term as Fed chairman does not expire until 1978, said it would be "a ruinous policy" for the Fed to suddenly take all restraint off the money supply.

Burns' testimony did little to quell speculation that there could be an early clash between him and Carter on economic policy.

Carter is committed to promoting programs to create jobs, but Burns said past methods of stimulating employment, such as budget deficits and easy credit, "cannot work well in an environment that has become highly sensitive to inflationary fears and expectations."

"Lasting prosperity will not be achieved until our country solves its chronic problem of inflation," he said.

When Burns said the Fed's new targets for money growth — down to 6.5 per cent from 7 per cent previously — did not represent a tightening of the money supply, committee chairman Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., expressed dismay.

"You're a very convincing man, but what you are trying to convince me of is that down is really up...It's hard to adjust to the idea that 6.5 per cent is higher than 7 per cent," Proxmire said.

The rate of growth of the nation's money supply is important to the economy because it influences interest rates, which in turn influence borrowing by business and consumers. Higher interest rates usually mean slower growth; lower interest rates promote faster growth.

Proxmire warned that Congress may restrict the Fed's independence if the Fed does not cooperate in its money policies.

Buckeye Hills Country Club sale looms

By PHIL LEWIS

Record-Herald City Editor

NEW MARTINSBURG — Due to apparent financial problems Buckeye Hills Country Club is about to change hands.

Operation of the 18-hole golf course which opened in 1971 has been turned over to the Farmers Home Administration. The federal government agency is seeking a buyer for the 231-acre country club.

The FHA assumed control of the deed in early November after Buckeye Hills Country Club, a non-profit corporation, was unable to pay the principal on a government loan. The debt was erased, according to club president Walter Hockaday, after the property was transferred to the FHA.

Members of the semi-private club, which straddles the Fayette-Highland county line, met in September to discuss the financial problems. The club has been reportedly unable to pay the principal on the loan for the past eight years. At that meeting the FHA proposed the deed be transferred and the property sold.

An FHA spokesman, Ralph Voorhis, in the Columbus office said several offers were being entertained and the land would be sold to the highest bidder.

Although there had been talk of selling a parcel of the land south of the golf course for residential use, Voorhis said the 231-acre property would be sold as "a unit package."

The FHA would not release the names of interested buyers or comment on how far along negotiations had gone. However, Hockaday reported that a Wisconsin bowling alley proprietor was interested in the property and a final deal was drawing near.

When contacted again, the FHA confirmed the report that Allan Clark of Lake Geneva Wis., had submitted an offer, but nothing had been finalized and offers were still being accepted.

Clark reported that he was "very interested" in purchasing the country club. He said he was contacted by a Lansing, Mich. real estate firm about the property.

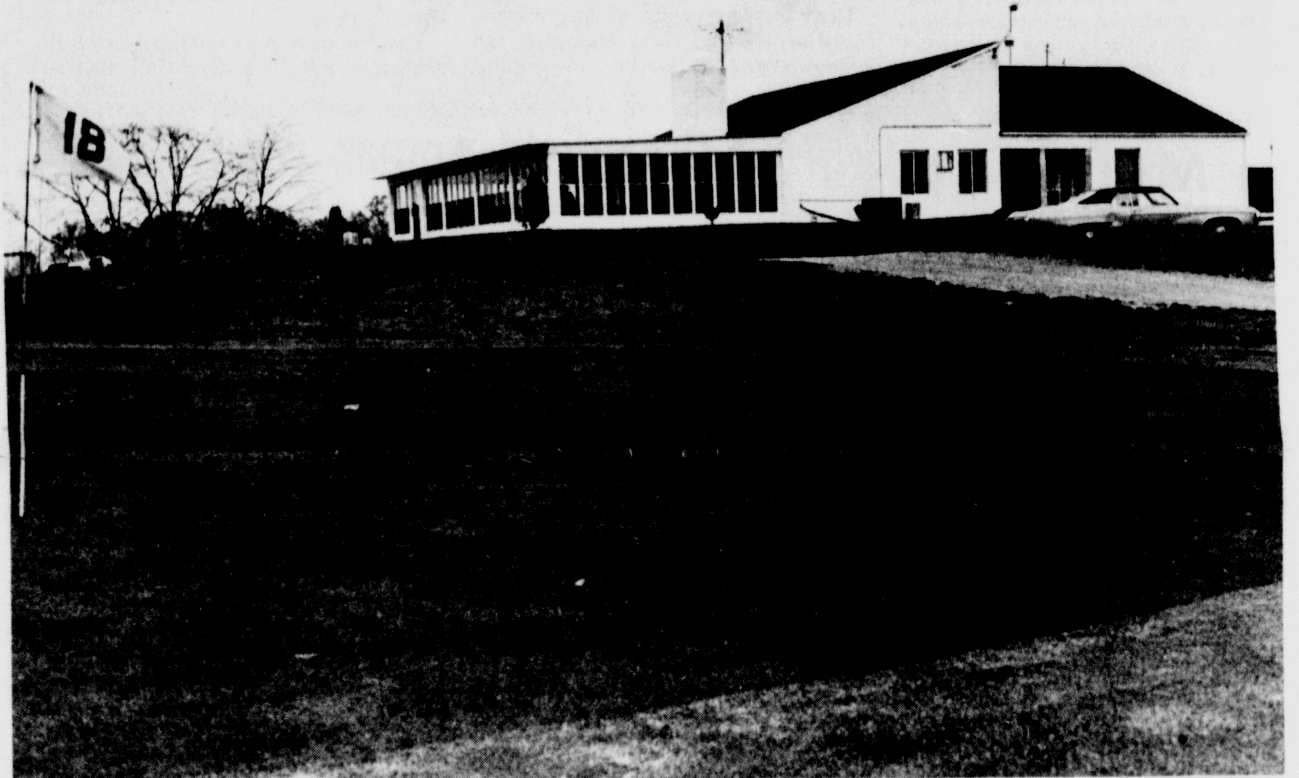

Clark has just sold his bowling alley in Lake Geneva Wis., but he is still in doubt when the final sale will be approved. He said the FHA reported that there had been a "slight snag" in the sale negotiations earlier this week.

He said he hoped the deal would be finalized soon, so a spring golf program could be planned for next year. Clark is planning to operate the golf course, club house and swimming pool on a semi-private basis. He said he would rely on memberships as well as some public use similar to the policy in past years.

Several area residents had pondered purchasing the country club property. Robert J. Snider, 705 McArthur Way, had filed for articles of incorporation earlier this month with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown under the name of Buckeye Hills Country Club, Inc.

Snider, a local accountant, said he was an agent for a group wishing to purchase the property, but the plan has been dropped.

While negotiations continue, Hockaday said the course is still open for club members.

UP FOR SALE — The Buckeye Hills Country Club has been put up for sale by the Farmers Home Administration. The FHA took over the operation of the 231-acre golf course, clubhouse and swimming pool this month and is seeking a buyer.

Carter aides competing for power

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter says he likes competition among his staff members, but there are signs he may be getting more than he wanted.

The gentle tug-of-war between the old Carter hands and the button-down newcomers that simmered during the campaign is picking up now that the high-stakes game of building an administration has begun.

One sign this week was the thick memo that campaign manager Hamilton Jordan sent to Carter suggesting ways to staff his administration.

This product duplicates to a degree the voluminous recommendations of Carter's transition staff, headed by Atlanta lawyer Jack Watson.

A former campaign Carter aide said Jordan was "moving to head off Watson."

One Carter insider, referring to the Watson-Jordan situation, said: "I guess we can expect more of that. I don't think there's any doubt Jimmy's going to receive competing recommendations, and he's not going to say, 'Hey, stop that,' because he likes competition among the corps."

"Jimmy's pretty happy with what's going on," this source said.

What's going on apparently is an effort by Jordan to re-establish himself in the Carter hierarchy now that his campaign job is over.

The pecking order among the Carter cadre turns largely on how long and how well a member has known the chief. The senior member, Charles Kirbo, goes back to 1962, when he won a lawsuit that saved Carter's election to the state Senate from alleged vote fraud by the opposition.

Jordan came in the next group, consisting of those who worked for Carter in his losing bid for the governorship in 1966. Press Secretary Jody Powell joined in 1970 when Carter ran for governor again and won, and he has been one of Carter's closest aides ever since.

Jordan, meantime, served as Carter's executive secretary and began planning the drive that climaxed this month with a Cinderella capture of the White House. Friends say Jordan fully expected that when the battle was won, he would resume his place at Carter's right hand in building the new administration.

Last summer, however, Watson proposed to Carter a plan for preparing the White House transition in advance and laying the groundwork for anticipated legislative programs and executive initiatives.

The idea was to enable Carter to hit Washington on the run and make his imprint quickly instead of settling slowly into the job the way most presidents have, with the exception of Franklin Roosevelt's first 100 days which had been planned by a similar "brain trust."

It suited Carter's style, and he bought it. Watson set up shop shortly after the Democratic party nominated Carter last summer. The result was a detailed presidential preparation which even VETERANS DAY RITES — A World War I veteran, dressed in his military uniform with a row of ribbons emblazoned across his chest, pays tribute to those who gave their lives in defense of America's freedom at the Veterans Day services held on the lawn of the Fayette County Courthouse Thursday morning. The services commemorated the signing of the armistice at 11 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 11, 1918, ending World War I. The Paul H. Hughey American Legion Post 25 sponsored services at the two local high schools Thursday and rites were also held in the evening on the Courthouse lawn following a parade.

In Double Play game

Greenfield woman wins $51,000 lottery prize

In Ohio's Lottery Double Play, a game in which three contestants participate, the object is to have your color turned up five times before one of the other contestants. The first place prize is $50,000, plus a bonus of $1,000 each time a contestant calls a number behind which is the color he or she is representing.

Mrs. Charlotte Easter, of Greenfield, having purchased a winning lottery ticket at Uhl's IGA grocery, in Greenfield, which is owned by her in-laws, and traveled to Cleveland on Thursday assured that she would go home with at least the guaranteed minimum prize of $5,000.

However, Mrs. Easter, who looked unbelievably calm as she appeared on the televised lottery program, was to go on to much bigger and better things. Competing with Maurice Etherington, of Greenfield, Ind., and Bertha Pedery, of Cleveland, Mrs. Easter, who was dressed in red and had red as her lottery color, racked up $51,000 in record time. Etherington won $25,000 and Mrs. Pedery won $10,000 as their respective colors were turned up five times.

After winning the $50,000 top prize, plus $1,000 for calling a number which represented her own color, Mrs. Easter narrowly missed winning another $10,000 in the spinning of the color wheel. The wheel stopped one notch from red, landing on blue, which determined blue as the winning color of the week.

The 38-year-old Mrs. Easter, who was unavailable for comment Friday morning, helps out at Uhl's IGA where her husband, Dick, is the meat department supervisor. They have one teenage son, Dale.

About six months ago, Bobbie Taylor, of Greenfield, bought a lottery ticket at Uhl's IGA and was the winner of $10,000.

MEANWHILE, 70-year-old William Svendsen of Springfield says winning $250,000 in the Ohio lottery will mean an early celebration of their

Federal income tax form more complicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you get a pocket calculator for Christmas, it's likely to come in handy when you tote up your federal income tax after the New Year.

Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Donald C. Alexander is warning taxpayers that completing the new tax return "could be more difficult" than in the past. One reason is the amount of math that will be required for the first time for many taxpayers.

Alexander's message is contained in an introduction to the new 1040, the so-called long form, that the IRS released

Thursday.

This year, hundreds of thousands of taxpayers who had become accustomed to just adding up their income and then finding their taxes on a table will now have to take several other steps.

They'll start by adding up their income, as they have in the past. But then they will have to subtract either standard or itemized deductions and then personal exemptions to reach taxable income. Only at that point could new tables be used to find the tax load.

An IRS spokesman said the service is concerned that this single change required by Congress will result in many more arithmetic errors than in previous years. The congressional tax-writing committees have claimed the change will simplify taxes by requiring only two pages of tax tables instead of the 10 used in the past.

Another change on the 1976 form involves the $30 credit for each taxpayer and dependent. It used to be a simple subtraction from taxes. This year it has been increased to $35, but also has an added complication. A taxpayer will have to decide whether a straight $35 credit is best or whether he should take the optional 2 per cent of taxable income up to a maximum $180 for most returns.

Taxpayers can expect to receive their forms by mid-January, about two weeks later than usual. Alexander said the delay results from late passage in the Congress of 1976 tax legislation.

In addition to the changes in computing taxes and the personal exemption credit, taxpayers also will find changes that allow child-care expenses to be subtracted directly from taxes owed, an end to the sickpay income exclusion in favor of a disability income exclusion and a simplified and expanded credit for taxpayers over 65.

Ship sinks; crew rescue slated

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tossed about in the Pacific's "worst weather of the year," some of the crewmen from the sunken lumber ship Carnelian-1 clung to floating logs from their vessel's scattered cargo and awaited rescue.

Two men were safely aboard the Panamanian-registered ship Hunter, still in trouble with cargo shifting in its hold. Six others were rescued by the freighter Wisteria, which arrived on the scene, 1,400 miles northwest of Honolulu, about midnight Thursday.

A Japanese ship, Shunyo Maru, was expected there this morning, but a Coast Guard cutter dispatched from Alaska would not reach the scene until Saturday.

At last light on Thursday, the pilot of a Coast Guard plane flying above the scene said he could count fewer than half the ship's 33 crew members bobbing in the 20-foot seas.

The Wisteria's night-long rescue effort was aided by a flare dropped from a circling Air Force plane. But the Coast Guard, noting the difficult weather conditions, said most of the crewman could not be rescued before first light — about 1 p.m. EST.

Eight men were balanced on a logjam from the cargo of the sunken ship, and three more were perched atop an upside down lifeboat from the Carnelian-1.

"A few" others were seen in rubber rafts dropped from planes to the life-jacketed men, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

A second lifeboat from the sunken ship was spotted drifting out of reach.

The spokesman said the Coast Guard plane dropped six 20-man rubber rafts and survival kits containing fresh water, food, lights and flares to the men.

"We have confirmed that some of them have gotten into the rafts that we dropped," he said.

The 472-foot Hunter arrived about four hours after the crewmen abandoned the sinking Carnelian-1, but the spokesman said the shifting cargo sent it rolling on the rough seas and slowed rescue efforts.

The National Weather Service said one storm had raged through the area for "several days" and another was moving in from the northwest.

"They'll have a lull in the winds and then the next one is going to roll in on them," said meteorologist Emil Gunther. He estimated winds in the area had dropped from 60 miles per hour to 35.

"It's the worst weather of the year," said forecaster Bob Morrell.

Gunther said water temperatures in the area probably are a "fairly warm" 65 to 69 degrees.

The Carnelian-1 first radioed at 10:15 a.m. PST Thursday that a deckload of lumber had broken loose and tumbled over the side in the storm. Further transmissions indicated the ship was flooding and its pumps had failed.

At 12:55 p.m., the Coast Guard said, the radio operator of the 486-foot lumber carrier messaged he was leaving his radio to stand by his lifeboat station.

More than an hour later a Navy plane arrived to send back first reports of crewmen clinging to floating logs.

The spokesman said the Carnelian-1 disappeared beneath the waters some time after the men abandoned ship.

The Japan-bound lumber carrier was owned by the Mitsui OSK Line of Japan, according to the line's Seattle agents, William Diamond Co.

Columbus fire fatal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Norwalk, Conn. man died in a two-alarm fire on the fifth floor of the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel early this morning, fire officials said.

The victim, whose body was found in the bathroom of his room, was unidentified pending notification of relatives. Authorities said he was alone in his room and died from smoke inhalation.

About 300 hotel guests from three floors were evacuated from the downtown building as firemen fought the blaze. They returned to their rooms about two hours after the fire was first reported.

Firemen believe the blaze started from a cigarette. Investigation continued today and no damage estimate was available. The fire was confined to the victim's room, authorities said.

Being wine taster not all it's thought to be

By MICHAEL RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — It sounded like a wine lover's dream: be a wine judge and taste dozens of some of California's best wines.

But before it was over my tongue was pickled and puckered and my mouth felt like it had been marinated in a cask forgotten in some dark corner by the little old winemaker.

It seemed so inviting: an invitation to join six wine experts on a wine panel for the annual Sonoma County Harvest Fair judging. No one mentioned it would be work, three days of dawn-to-dusk, hard-core slurping.

Being a devotee of the grape, I couldn't turn down this opportunity.

But my mouth almost needed medical help some 350 glasses of wine later, and none of my friends was sympathetic. They thought I had enjoyed myself. But they failed to differentiate between wine drinking and wine tasting.

We wine experts — they did invite me to be a judge — must painfully and regretfully spit out each slurp after rolling it over and around our palates. Trying to take even a tiny sip of that many wines — more than 100 a day — would leave one's skull heavily over-cast. It would be hard to tell the simple difference between red and white wines, much less any subtle nuance. It would even be hard to remember to go home at night.

This isn't to say that a trickle or two of some particularly delightful sample didn't infrequently slip down someone's throat. But it is, alas, infrequent.

That's the frustrating part. You come across something that tastes so good your ears wiggle, but all you've got is a dribble in your glass ... and you can't run out and buy some because you don't know which winery it's from — the wines are identified only by their type and numbers. No names, please.

It's all very strict. Hidden away in another room under secret code numbers, the wines are poured into numbered glasses, then brought to the judges' tables. There, the grapevine gurus carefully examine each wine making careful written notes on each facet of a wine's characteristics: color, smell, flavor. We dip into our knowledge of what a certain grape variety's wine tastes like — each has its own distinctions — and then try to decide how good, or bad, each sample is.

After sniffing and sipping we voted on each wine; either it won an award or it didn't.

Often a beautiful bouquet would entrance a judge, who eagerly tasted it. But on rare occasions one could hear a muffled, "Aargh, do I have to insult my mouth and actually taste this?" when someone felt it would be olfactory suicide to sip a bad try at winemaking.

And there were times when it was painful willpower to keep from gleefully imbibing some enological excellence.

So there we were. Seven of us — Ruth Ellen Church of the Chicago Tribune, David Pursglove of the Washington Star, international wine writer Alexis Bespaloff, wine editor Henry Rubin of Bon Appetit Magazine — no relation — and Profs. James Guymon and Cornelius Ough of the University of California at Davis' School of Enology.

All of us were garbed in white laboratory coats to guard against some over-enthusiastic swirl bounding out of the glass to stain our clothing permanently. We sat at tables layered with white tablecloths. Bright klieg lights blazed over our shoulders to provide a perfect background under which to judge the wines' colors.

With few words we set to our task. The first series of shimmering yellow-gold white wines came out, beginning what became a series of unending waves of wine glasses. We eagerly worked our way through the opening rounds of white wines, joyous fruity fragrances and perfumes filling our noses.

Things got more difficult when we returned after a brief break and found awaiting our opinion 18 numbered glasses of Pinot Chardonnays, the finest white wine grape of California and France. There were the tiniest subtleties of grape flavor and intensity to look for as well as variations of wood aging or lack of it.

Our knees got wobbly by late afternoon of the second day when, already weary, we came face-to-face with 25 potent Zinfandels, the heady berryish red wine. There were so many of them it took two rows to surround each judge, and it took a careful touch to keep from sending rows of glasses sprawling.

Barely had we sipped our way through, aided by increasingly frequent gulps of water to clear our palates, when the "coup de mouth" appeared: 22 Cabernet Sauvignons — the full, assertive variety of French Bordeaux grape, the one which makes California's best red wine.

When it was over we were all pucker'd out. In fact at a beautiful Sonoma County Winegrowers Association dinner that evening, despite a groaning table laden with the area's finest fine wines, three judges sheepishly wolfed down an ice cold beer.

But like the truehearts we were, we all returned to the pleasures of the grape for dinnertime. And, properly refreshed, we poured ourselves into our final day of judging the next morning.

At the end of three days they told us we each had tasted 347 separate glasses of wine; averaged 1,388 tastes each; as a group gone through 2,429 glasses of wine and proclaimed our opinions based on a total of 9,716 tastes. No count was made of stained teeth.

We awarded seven gold medals to some outstanding wines.

That should have been enough, but let me tell you about the dynamite wine I had with dinner that night ...

Ohio Perspective

New court makeup to hurt remap

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democrats' new 4-3 majority on the Ohio Supreme Court may give GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes a major obstacle in his battle to redistrict the Democratic legislature.

One official says it could mean the end of the road for the effort launched by Rhodes early this year as member and chairman of the State Apportionment Board.

He claims the board, under Democratic control when it redrew Senate and House districts in 1971, violated Ohio Constitutional guidelines.

His challenge now is pending in the U.S. Court of Appeals, 6th Circuit, in Cincinnati.

The federal court case seeks to lift a 1973 injunction which has kept Rhodes out of the state court system where the challenge eventually would have to be decided. The injunction was issued by U.S. District Judge Frank J. Battisti of Cleveland after a three-judge panel ruled that the present districts comply with the U.S. Constitution. Battisti is a Democrat.

In the Nov. 2 election, Democrats Ralph Locher of Cleveland and A. William Sweeney of Cincinnati captured the Supreme Court seats of two retiring Republicans, giving their party its first domination of the court in 16 years.

Candidates for the court run without party designation on ballots, and it is an unwritten rule that decisions of the tribunal not be made on the basis of politics. Over the years, there has been much room to speculate over how well that rule is observed.

House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, an attorney, charged indirectly that Battisti's injunction stemmed from party loyalty, without mentioning the judge by name.

He said if the new Democratic court "is as partisan as some other courts and one judge, then any chance for the success of the governor's challenge has been eliminated."

Republicans have not been reluctant over the years to turn to the court—5-2 Republican in recent years—when they had battles with Democrats they otherwise couldn't win.

The most recent case involved the "Six Day War" at the end of former Gov. John J. Gilligan's term, when Democrats rushed six bills through the legislature before Rhodes took office. The court invalidated the bills 5-2 along party lines.

Rhodes may not be governor today except for a similar party line decision in 1974 that cleared the way for his third term.

In that case, the governor called into question the two-term limitation on governors, saying the restriction applied only to consecutive terms and claiming he was eligible to run again after sitting one out.

The court agreed, although some legal spokesmen say the decision circumvented the intent of the legislature and voters in adopting the limitation.

Hunt trial defense set

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — The defense was to begin presenting its case today in the trial of James Robert Hunt, a 24-year-old deaf mute charged with the murder of a neighbor woman.

Defense attorney Thomas Twyford said he did not intend to place Hunt on the stand.

The state rested its case Thursday. The court then recessed until today at the request of Twyford, who said he was surprised by the prosecution's early windup.

After the recess, Twyford said the prosecution finished its case early because, "they didn't have any evidence except one lousy fingerprint, and that's it."

A fingerprint of Hunt was found on an inside door window of the car belonging to the murder victim, Ruth Norleen Arledge, 56. The car was parked less than a mile from where the beaten body of

Mrs. Arledge was found in March 1974 in Tar Hollow State Forest north of here.

"I can explain the fingerprint and will in court," Twyford promised.

Two court-appointed translators have been interpreting court proceedings for Hunt, who spent two years in a state mental institution learning sign language to assist in his defense.

Opinion And Comment

Unheralded near-miss

Science fiction often places Earth in the path of an Approaching Object, with astronomers warning of imminent disaster while the world tensely awaits its fate. There was a real-life episode much like this a few years ago when a comet was observed heading for our planet. Though few people expected the worst, the episode was exciting while it lasted.

Those who relish that kind of excitement may feel cheated at word that a similar incident last month went unnoticed. Except, of course, by astronomers, who kept an eye on an asteroid as it approached Earth and whisked past a mere three-fourths of a million miles away. By astronomical standards, enough of a near-miss to send a little chill on a spinal journey!

Were an asteroid to collide with

Earth it would create havoc - quite possibly, depending on the object's size, more havoc than any natural disaster on record. So perhaps it is just as well that the experts kept their counsel. People might have worried. And worrying just doesn't have much effect on the trajectories of comets, tooling about the universe in compliance with the impartial laws of physics.

THESE DAYS By John Chamberlain

A matter of unfinished business

The election campaign left many issues dangling, with no commonsense answers suggested. Among them were the status of the B-1 bomber, which was under fire for being an anachronistic proposal in the age of the intercontinental ballistic missile. A second unsettled issue was the plethora of oil that the Alaska pipeline will soon be delivering to ports on the Pacific Coast with no cheap way in sight to bring it to the American Middle West and the industrial Northeast.

The critics of the B-1 have Soviet Russia in mind when they say it would be a useless supplement to the various missiles that would be raining ruin on both sides if ever the big all-out conflict between the superpowers were to be unleashed. Assuming that the ultimate stupidity of atomic warfare is in the cards, the enemies of the B-1 have a point.

But if we are to assume there will be lesser trouble involving critical U.S. interests in the future (say in Latin America), the B-1 might be a most useful addition to the U.S. armaments. In the first place, its existence would be a prime deterrent. Secondly, in a small war fought with conventional firepower, it would be the logical successor to the aging B-52 which, if it did not bring victory against the North Vietnamese Communists, at least kept us going until peace of a sort had been restored by politicians who proved too inept to take advantage of it.

The oil from the Alaskan North Slope has created a political issue that makes no economic sense. If current policy persists, the oil companies that have built the Alyeska pipeline through the North Country wilderness to the ice-free port of Valdez on the Pacific will be limited to marketing it in the "lower 48" states and in U.S. overseas areas. The argument is that, with our oil imports from the OPEC countries wrecking our balance of trade, we cannot afford to let a single drop of Alaskan oil go to a non-American consumer.

The whole quarrel, however, defies the basic rudiments of Ricardian economics. Apparently our legislators have forgotten, if they ever knew, the commonsense aspects of David Ricardo's "law of comparative advantage." The application of this law to the disposition of Alaskan oil would not entail adding a nickel to our trade balance with the Arabs.

The trick would be to sell the excess of North Slope oil to the Japanese in return for the barter of due bills (so to speak) entitling us to equal amounts of oil from the Persian Gulf. The Persian Gulf oil would move to American Atlantic ports at considerably less cost than it would take to bring Alaskan oil through the Panama Canal or around Cape Horn. Everyone would gain, with completely neutral effects on the balance of trade bottom line. The deal would not have to be for any longer than it will take for new pipelines to be constructed from Pacific Coast oil terminals to existing forwarding facilities in Texas or the plains states of the upper Middle West.

In applying elementary "law of comparative advantage" thinking to Alaskan oil shipments the politicians would be engaging in the sort of barter arrangements that is common between multinational companies. The home factories of the Montedison company of Italy, for example, trade industrial chemicals with American companies in Europe, while subsidiaries of the Italian firm in the U.S. do the same in America. The whole business washes out with no impact on the Italian-American balance of international payments.

We pay a big price for sending politicians to Washington who have forgotten college freshman economics. We should, of course, arrange to make all that Alaskan oil available to the lower 48 states for reasons of ultimate military security. But in the interim there is every economic reason to barter some North Slope oil to the Japanese in return for equal shipments of oil from Arabia.

Atwater's New History of Ohio in 1838 declared that there were 17,000 abolitionists in the state. Then, in Trumbull County alone, there were 2,249 enrolled members.—AP

"LIKE KOREANS, FOREFATHERS SHOULD HAVE GIVEN CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS TO CONGRESSMEN!"

New GI benefit bill has strings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Future veterans of America's armed forces are going to have to give a little if they want Uncle Sam to help put them through college or graduate school when they return to civilian life.

The men and women who enlist after Dec. 31 will not be entitled automatically to the lucrative education benefits that current members of the military and all veterans in recent years have shared.

But the Pentagon and the Veterans Administration are gearing up for an experimental new education program that will provide benefits for servicemen and women who are willing to put aside at least $50 a month for their own educational fund.

The experiment is a compromise written into the new GI bill that Congress passed in September. It will be reviewed in years.

Under the new program, those who join the military after Dec. 31 can gain the new educational benefits by contributing from $50 to $75 a month to the VA, up to a limit of $2,700 over the individual's military career. The government will match the contributions with $2 for each $1 invested.

A person may quit the program at the end of any 12-month period. Those who quit get their money back but in most cases they lose their rights to the government benefits.

The benefits may be used after release from active duty, provided that the person is not dishonorably discharged.

Under the system being phased out, veterans are paid up to $292 a month in educational benefits for from 36 to 45 months if they meet certain requirements, such as 18 months of active duty. No contributions are required.

Current servicemen and women will be able to use those benefits for 10 years after leaving military service, or until the end of 1989, whichever comes first. Also eligible for these benefits will be anyone who enlists this year, even if he does not actually get into uniform until next year.

Education payments will be limited either to the number of months the member contributes or to 36 months, whichever is less. The amount of each individual's fund will be divided by the number of months participating to determine the monthly payments during schooling.

Benefits under the new program also must be used within 10 years after leaving military service. Unused contributions will be refunded.

This feature was a compromise with those who objected to the program being included in the VA budget since the old GI bill was designed basically for readjustment of those who served in wartime and not for a peacetime, all-volunteer military.

The census of 1850 reported that among the almost two million Ohioans only 66,020 over 20 years of age could not read or write.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Wants to herd sheep, not people

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my job. I am a bus driver in Tacoma, Wash. I can handle the traffic, but the people are driving me bananas. I've been driving a bus for four years now, and I don't know how I've lasted this long.

Can you give me some information on becoming a shepherd? A few months ago I read somewhere that there was a real need in the American Southwest for shepherds, but it was hard finding people who could cope with the isolation that went with the job.

Abby, all my life I've found it hard to deal with people. I crave isolation. I could go for weeks without seeing a human being and be perfectly content. I may be slightly weird, but this is me. Can you help me?

FED UP
DEAR FED UP: Shepherds tending American flocks have traditionally been Basques imported from Spain and sheepman occasionally complain that the immigration quotas shut off their supply of herders. Write to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for the name and address of sheep industry organizations. They'll tell you what, if any, opportunities exist to herd sheep instead of people.

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago I married a widower who had two daughters. This is my first marriage. Beginning with Easter, then Mother's Day, then Memorial Day, then her birthday, followed by the anniversary of her death and ending with HER wedding anniversary, the two married daughters make a regular pilgrimage to the cemetery to visit their mother's grave.

I don't mind this, but I do mind the pressure they put on their father to go with them. On some of these occasions, I have accompanied him, but I feel as he does, that Mass and Communion are much more meaningful and not nearly as obnoxious. Don't misunderstand, I have not complained once, and never will, but I think six trips in five weeks to lay plastic flowers on the grave is overdoing it.

How should I handle it? My husband's daughters didn't make all these trips to their mother's grave before their father married me.

IRRITATED
DEAR IRRITATED: Continue to handle it as you have. Say nothing.

DEAR ABBY: One of your readers suggested national Daughter-in-Law Day. Well, I'm a daughter-in-law but I had all the honor I need in just knowing and loving a mother-in-law. I'll tell you about her.

She was a diamond in the rough, a tiny, fiery redhead. Had she been a man, she would have been a two-fisted hard-drinking gambler. She adored her son. No woman alive was good enough for him, but if one HAD been, it would have been me. When she had a snootful, she berated me, insulted me, baited me. She came very close to loving me, and perhaps she did.

I was with her the day she broke her hip. She was barefooted, in a char- treuse bathing suit, having just come in from a day at the local swimming hole with her two small grandsons and myself. That was the beginning of the end.

I gave her a permanent the day before she died, and as she left to go home, she put her freckled arms around my waist and in her deep, husky voice said, "I love you, honey." Those were her last words to me.

How I loved that tough old lady, and I miss her like hell.

Codex contemplated

By JOEL EPSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Like the message it carries, the world's oldest complete Hebrew Bible has survived invasions, fire, programs and the passing of centuries.

For more than 1,000 years, Jews have guarded the "aleppo crown" codex, ransoming it from Gentile conquerors, hiding it from marauders and finally smuggling it from Syria to Israel.

Some of the parchment pages are badly faded and about a quarter of it was damaged by fire during an anti-Jewish riot 28 years ago.

The Hebrew University in Jerusalem recently published a facsimile edition of the codex. The publication, of value to Jewish and Christian scholars alike, is the fruit of a $130,000, four-year research program.

The 600-page reproductions, printed by the university's press, cost $400 a copy.

"We have scrolls of parts of the Old Testament which predate the codex," says Prof. Moshe Goshen-Gottstein, who headed the research, "but this is the oldest Old Testament we have.
Older ones have vanished in antiquity."

Unlike a scroll, which is printed on only one side, a codex is a manuscript bound like a book, with writing on both sides of the page, Goshen-Gottstein explained in an interview.

He said, "Ritual demands that the Hebrew Bible, unlike secular books, be spelled and read absolutely correctly.
The aleppo crown was the first manuscript ever to include instructions on all the correct spellings and readings."

The codex was written at the beginning of the 10th century by the master scribe Aharon Ben Asher, working in Tiberias by the Sea of Galiwe. He fills the margins with notes on spelling and cryptic signs to guide future generations of scribes and worshippers.

The sacred volume was carried to Jerusalem, center of the Jewish world, where it became famous throughout the Middle East.

In the 11th century, Jerusalem was sacked by the crusaders, then by the Arab Seljuks. The Jews of the city were massacred and their possessions burned and looted.

Ben Asher's Bible was seized and carried off, apparently to Cairo. There it was held for ransom to the Jewish community.

"There is a basic principle in the Jewish religion that people and books must be ransomed," said Goshen-Gottstein. So the Jews raised the money and bought the book for the Jewish library of Cairo.

In the 14th century, the volume was taken to the Syrian city of Aleppo.
There it received its present name — the "aleppo crown" — and became enshrined in the main synagogue of the large Jewish community.

The crown remained in Aleppo for more than 500 years. Then, during the Israeli war of independence in 1948, a mob of enraged Syrians broke into the synagogue, tore at the manuscript and set it ablaze.

But only about a quarter was burned.
The charred parchments were rescued and hidden away. About 20 years ago, it was smuggled out of Syria into Israel.

Presbyterians promote peers

On November 7, the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church elected officers for the coming year and adopted an initial budget for 1977.

Those elected to the session of the church for a three year term were,
Paul Crosby, Miss Marjorie Evans,
Mrs. Jane Rankin, and Harold Vail.
These officials will replace the following members whose terms are expiring: Mrs. Marguerite Jenkins, Rollo Marchant, Tom Rankin, and Mrs.

Janet Rex.

Joe Giebelhouse, Richard Glass,
Mrs. Melanie Merriman, and Jim Purcell were elected to the board of deacons for three year terms, and they replace Lester Bower, Debbie Dunn, Larry Lloyd, and Bill Pool. Mrs.
Elizabeth Miller was elected as deacon to fill the unexpired term of Hank Shaffer.

The board of trustees received three newly elected officials. They were Lowell Fichner, Joe Shoemaker, and Bruce Strickling, and they replace Charles Coffey, Mrs. Harriet Coil, and Mrs. Judy Cornwell.

Elected to the youth council to serve until graduation were Andy Merriman and Lori Wilson.

The budget for 1977, totaling $66,500 was presented by Larry Moss

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Archie Bunker a writer? No way. But Carroll O'Connor, who plays America's most famous blue collar combatant, has been at the typewriter of late, tussling with the muse.
He's writing — and will star in — TV's version of "The Last Hurrah," Edwin O'Connor's hit 1956 novel about Boston politics and a fine old rogue of a mayor who tosses his derby in the ring one last time.
The book became a 1958 movie starring Spencer Tracy. But actor O'Connor and Columbia Pictures Television say the version being made for NBC is a fresh one, not simply a remake of the movie.
It came about this way, says O'Connor the actor, no relation to O'Connor the novelist: "My agent brought me the book and wanted me to do the part (of Mayor Frank Sfeffington, the book's central figure).
"I say okay, but I wanted to see the Tracy movie. So I did. I didn't think I could repeat what I saw on the screen, so I said, 'Let me see the old screenplay ... maybe what was on the screen wasn't the screenplay.'
But it was. Whereupon O'Connor commenced writing a new version directly from the book, incorporating aspects of the novel he says he feels either were lacking or overplayed in the movie.

For example, he says, "I'm going to keep the bigotry Edwin O'Connor had in the novel, but I'm going to play it as an undertone rather than as the main theme."
O'Connor said he'll probably start filming the movie next March or April.

Christmas club checks generous

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP) — A computer at the Key City Bank and Trust Co. sent out checks this week to 25 Christmas club members that were a million dollars bigger than they should have been.

"I still have my check — but I haven't tried to cash it," said a surprised Mary Sweeney, whose husband is cement mason. "I'm having a lot of fun showing it around."

Key City vice-president Jack Roach said the million-dollar errors were made at the check-punching machine.

Bank employees called club members as soon as they discovered the error to advise them the checks would be cashed for the proper amount if they were brought in.

"They didn't say what the error was," said Mrs. Sweeney. "You can imagine my shock when my check was for $1,000,256.25."

Cash awards being offered for non-commercial floats

A total of $250 is being offered groups which enter non-commercial floats in the 1976 Christmas parade. Any non-profit group entering a float which is handmade by its members is eligible.

The fund for float awards has been increased by $100 through a contribution by the Retail Merchants Association, an arm of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce.

The money appropriated by the merchants will be in addition to cash awards made by the Chamber of Commerce itself. The Chamber of Commerce will award $100 for the "best of show" for non-commercial floats and $50 for second place. The Retail Merchants Association will award $75 for the non-commercial float which is best in keeping with the theme "Christmas Down Home." The merchants will award $25 to the float which finishes second in this category.

Other categories which will be judged include the "most colorful" and the float which carries the "best costumed characters." Plaques will be awarded to first and second place in each category, but as yet there are no funds available for cash awards in these other divisions.

The merchants association hopes that other segments of the Chamber membership, industrial firms agricultural concerns or others will consider sponsoring similar cash awards.

The merchants purpose in offering monetary awards is to promote greater interest in homemade floats. There is a strong sense of cooperation and pride evident among members of groups which have taken the time to create their own floats in the past. The merchants would like to encourage others to become involved in this way.

The parade is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday, December 4. Those who wish to participate with marching units or floats are asked to contact the Chamber of Commerce (335-0761) as soon as possible.

Clowns to participate and distribute candy along the parade route are needed. Anyone willing to serve in this capacity is also asked to contact the Chamber of Commerce.

Sludge bacteria fights illness

BOSTON (AP) — A group of Cleveland medical researchers is examining the possibility of using simple bacteria from sewage plant sludge in place of expensive artificial kidneys.

In a paper presented at the convention of the Alliance for Engineering in Medicine and Biology, the group said it has used bacteria in lab experiments to remove important poisons from urine, the first step toward showing the idea is workable.

The bacteria would perform the function of a normal kidney. The bacteria might be taken as pills, or react with the blood outside the body, much like an artificial kidney, or be planted in some other way in the body.

Kidneys, acting as filters, remove the body's waste products from the blood and put them in urine. Without a kidney, waste products build up, eventually killing the patient.

The leader of the Cleveland group, Paul S. Malchesky, a chemist in charge of the metabolic section of the Cleveland Clinic, said in an interview that full-scale use of bacteria to replace artificial kidneys and kidney transplants was perhaps "five, 10, 25 years down the road."

He noted the National Institutes of Health had rejected an application for a research grant on the grounds the project was "too far out."

In his experiment, Malchesky mixed small amounts of bacteria solutions obtained from a Cleveland plant, with a bit less than a quart of normal urine, a little less than an adult's normal daily output.

Averaging 70 batches together, the bacteria, by "eating" it, removed 74 per cent of the urea and 64 per cent of the uric acid, important poisons, in up to four days.

In some batches, the bacteria "ate" all the urea much more quickly, and Malchesky believes the variability was the result of contamination of his equipment, which he made no attempt to sterilize.

Malchesky noted that in batches of a quart at a time, the bacteria could not remove enough urea and uric acid, or other important substances, to match the performance of normal or artificial kidneys.

Gas drilling plan gains look

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An official of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio says the commission is interested in a Youngstown firm's proposal which could once again permit natural gas connections for new houses.

The PUCO has scheduled a hearing Nov. 23 on the proposal by Universal Energy Services Inc., which would allow residential connections when "self-help" gas wells are drilled to provide gas for the subdivision.

John Borrows, utilities director for the commission, said the PUCO sees the idea as a method which not only would serve consumers but which could increase gas drilling and exploration in the state.

"I would say if everything Universal says they can do can be shown, the project is probably a good 'one,'" Borrows said.

Universal asked the PUCO to relax its present ban on new natural gas connections to allow the "self-help" drilling program.

Universal said it plans to build "several thousand" new homes in northeast Ohio, fueled by natural gas wells drilled as part of the project. Seven wells already have been drilled, and more will follow, said Stephen R. Vrabie, president and founder of the firm.

"We hope to expand this concept throughout the state eventually," he said.

The PUCO banned new gas connections for residential customers of Columbia Gas of Ohio in 1972 because of the growing natural gas shortage. New residential connections by East Ohio Gas Co. in northern Ohio were terminated at the end of last year.

Vrabie said the self-help program would be a boon to potential homeowners, now resistant to the high heating cost of all-electric houses, and to the housing industry.

"In my area, 37 per cent of the people who build houses are out of work because buyers want gas heat," said Vrabie, a former marketing official of East Ohio Gas.

He said homes built under the plan would cost about $1,000 extra because of the gas wells, but claimed savings in heating costs would defray that investment in a year.

Industries in Ohio, including the General Motors Corp. and the Ohio Manufacturers Association, have filed formal objections to the plan with the PUCO, claiming it is "unjust, unreasonable and unlawful."

Their legal briefs note that Universal would be required only to make a "best effort" to supply natural gas for its homes. If insufficient gas is drilled, the residential customers would have first priority, along with existing residential customers, to regular gas supplies.

That would put an additional burden on industries which are subject to gas curtailment during periods of short supply, the industry representatives say.

"I'm offended by the proposal," said Sheldon Taft, manufacturers' association counsel.

Traffic Court

Two fines were levied upon a Kentucky man for his violation of two traffic codes, as Judge John P. Case presided Wednesday during a traffic session of Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Garland T. Matthews, 44, of Covington, Ky., was fined $50 for driving without a driver's license, and $25 for a speeding conviction.

Easter R. Woods, 66, of Mount Sterling, waived her rights to a hearing for a failure to yield to an oncoming vehicle charge, and paid $15.

Municipal Court

A total of $110 in fines was imposed upon a Columbus man Wednesday in Washington C.H. Municipal Court, for his conviction on eight counts of check fraud.

Judge John P. Case found Howard B. Payton, 22, of Columbus, guilty of having passed eight bad checks to various service stations, department stores, and hardware stores in Washington C.H. from July through October.

Arrested Tuesday by Washington C.H. police officers, Howard was sentenced to 10 days in jail on each count, with all the time suspended provided he does not violate the law for two years. He was also ordered to make restitution for all the checks.

Firemen check injury report

Washington C.H. firemen were summoned to two investigations Thursday.

Firemen were at the B.E. Kelley residence, 832 Washington Ave., to assist Kelley who had fallen down his stairs and was unable to get up at 6:02 p.m. Thursday. Kelley was not treated for injury at the time.

Homer Bireley, 529 S. Fayette St., called firemen at 8 p.m. Thursday to check a broken light switch which had come loose from a wall in the home.

Theft, break-in reports investigated by officers

A theft of approximately 30 used batteries valued at $60 from the Cartwright Salvage Co., 760 Robinson Road, was reported to Washington C.H. police officers Thursday.

The batteries were allegedly stolen from a storage shed on the salvage yard on the company, sometime between Nov. 3 and Wednesday.

Routine patrol early Friday morning by Washington C.H. Police Ptl. Anthony Wilson disclosed signs of a probable break-in attempt at the offices of two Washington C.H. physicians.

Wilson reported that a back door glass on the J.H. Persinger office, 630 Highland Ave., was broken by an unknown object, though nothing appeared to be missing from inside the office.

A window at the rear of the Dr. Marvin Roszmans office, 1235 Dayton Ave., had been pulled open causing the crank mechanism to break, Wilson also stated. Nothing from the office was reported missing.

Nelson McCann Jr., 916 Sycamore St., told police officers that his car was entered by unknown subjects Thursday night, though nothing was removed.

Local volunteers attend VA meet

Miss Helen L. Slavens, executive secretary of the Fayette County chapter of the American Red Cross, and Mrs. Howard Osborne, 511 E. Temple St., recently attended the 30th anniversary meeting of the voluntary service advisory committee at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Chillicothe.

The committee, composed of representatives of 37 veterans, fraternal and civic organizations, first met in 1946 to plan community participation in the health care program for hospitalized veterans.

Mrs. Osborne was among the honored guests at the observance and was presented a certificate in recognition of her 20 years of service to the veterans as a volunteer of the Fayette County chapter.

Dorsets capture coveted honors

The premier exhibitor award plaque goes to one exhibitor in each breed who amasses the greatest amount of premium money in the breed show.

Maple Grove Dorsets won champion ram, champion ewe and premier exhibitor at the Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina state fairs held in September and October.

Maple Grove Dorsets will be exhibited at the North American Livestock Show in Louisville, Ky. November 12 - 20. Cindi Grover has trained a ewe to lead by halter and will participate in the ladies lead class wearing a 100 per cent wool outfit.

Car overturns on Palmer Road

County driver slightly hurt in rural mishap

A Fayette County man suffered minor injuries Thursday after his car overturned one and a half times and came to rest on its top, according to Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

Traveling west on the Palmer Road, Jerry N. Davis, 29, of Rt. 3, Allen Road, reportedly lost control of his car while rounding a curve located just north of the Harmony Road at 4:05 p.m. Thursday.

The car went left of center, came back over to the right berm and flipped over before landing on its top in the middle of the Palmer Road, sheriff's deputies said.

Davis showed signs of injury but was not treated at the time, according to the report. His car was demolished and he was charged by sheriff's deputies with reckless operation.

Washington C.H. police officers reported that slight damage was the result of a 4:46 p.m. Thursday accident in the municipal parking lot on S. Fayette Street.

A car driven by Alfred B. Coe, 62, of 466 Carolyn Road, was in the process of backing westward when it collided with a car driven by Shirley J. Kassell, 31, of Columbus, which was also in the process of backing at the time.

No movement seen in Vietnam talks

PARIS (AP) — Little or no progress is expected before January in the talks opening today in Paris between the United States and Vietnam.

U.S. spokesman say any major decisions on relations with Vietnam must await President-elect Jimmy Carter's inauguration. Observers also say the Vietnamese Communist party is expected to redefine the reunited nation's foreign policy at its congress in Hanoi next month.

No improvement in Vietnamese-American relations appears likely after the change in U.S. administrations unless Hanoi meets the American demand for a full accounting of the 800 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action in Vietnam.

This was promised in the 1973 Paris peace agreement, and President Ford has made the information the precondition for progress toward normal relations. Carter during the campaign approved Ford's stand.

Union says GM's offer falls short

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers, charging that General Motors' initial economic offer falls short of the industry pattern, has countered with new proposals on a three-year contract.

"The GM offer contains many shortfalls and we have made proposals on each of these," UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone said Thursday following a 45-minute maintainable negotiation session.

Bluestone said one of the proposals involved the union's demand for additional paid days off, ultimately to achieve a four-day work week.

A union spokesman said one shortcoming in the company's offer was a failure to make the contract retroactive. The union, which had indefinitely extended the old contract, wants the new pact to take effect Sept. 20, a week after the old accord's original expiration date.

The union, which would not identify any other "shortfalls," has set a deadline of midnight next Thursday for either a settlement on a new accord or a 21-state walkout by 390,000 hourly workers.

Both sides, however, have said there still is sufficient time to reach an agreement without a strike.

The two sides also held subcommittee meetings Thursday on insurance, seniority, preferential hiring and health and safety matters. They also agreed to commission a joint

THE LEAGUE'S BEST — Tonight, the SCOL's two best quarterbacks will lead their teams into battle against each other. Mark Heiny of Washington C.H. left and Miami Trace's Art Schlichter are ranked one-two in league passing yardage. Schlichter, a junior, is 86 for 126 passing for 1,567 yards. Heiny, a senior, 70 of 131 passing for 938 yards. They are the only league quarterbacks who have completed over 50 per cent of their passes.

New OSU cage pilot emphasizes defense

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eldon Miller makes it clear what his objective is in his first Ohio State basketball coaching season, which begins tonight with an exhibition against a touring Australian squad.

"We're determined not to let the opposition score. What makes basketball is defensive enthusiasm," said the man taking over the Buckeyes from the resigned Fred Taylor.

Looking at his first squad's lack of height, Miller said, "Someone may post us low and hurt us. We've got to get team defense close to the basket."

"Our personnel situation is that we have to play with some great athletes who are short. The tallest are rookies," he said.

One of those freshmen, 6-foot-7 Jim Ellinghausen from Plymouth, Mich., has earned a starting job against the Australians. Mark Hetz, a 6-8 newcomer from Defiance, is expected to play a great deal too.

The other exhibition starters will be a trio of seniors, 6-6 Clance Hammond of Columbus, 6-3 Mike Daugherty of Bedford and 6-foot Larry Bolden from Cleveland, the team's top returning scorer.

But Miller puts little emphasis on a first unit, saying, "We have people on the bench who will play as much as the starters. We're so small we can't play tired."

The Buckeyes' new coach ticks off the names of Hetz, 6-3 junior Jud Wood of Columbus, 6-5 sophomore Fred Poole of Columbus, 6-3 Mike Cline of Millersburg and 6-6 sophomore Rick Smith of Vienna, Va., as dependable reserves.

"I'm concerned about our scoring inside and our defense close to the basket," said Miller, always an advocate of an aggressive defense. He learned that in his playing days at Wittenberg for Coach Ray Mears.

Can Miller improve on last year's 6-

20 record and lastplace finish in the conference?

Miller concedes he has no idea how the Buckeyes will do in the conference, but said, "The Big Ten is the best in the country and it's going to continue to be that way. If you want to be the best in the country, you better be the best in the Big Ten."

As contenders, he likes defending champion Indiana, Michigan, Purdue and possibly Minnesota.

"Indiana has the best big man (Kent Benson) in the country back. Michigan lost only Wayne Britt. Purdue has its best team in years," said Miller.

The Buckeyes start the season officially at home Saturday, Nov. 27, against Butler.

Sisler happy in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — George Sisler Jr. has good news for senior citizens. At 59, he thinks he's too young to continue as president of the International League.

That's why he has accepted an offer to become general manager of the new Columbus professional baseball franchise and the refurbished $5 million Franklin County Stadium, home of the Pittsburgh Pirates' new IL farm club.

Sisler returns to the post he held in Columbus during the declining years (1953-54) of the St. Louis Cardinals' working agreement. Only his title is the same.

Why quit the relatively secure job of league president to head a new baseball operation in a city which abandoned the game nearly seven years ago?

"I feel young enough that I want to become involved in something more active than being a league president," he replied. "I miss the competition, the scouting, the day-to-day things that made the administrative aspect of baseball so fascinating to me.

"I think perhaps I became a league president when I was too young (48)," the son of Hall of Famer George Sisler Sr. continued. "...There were too many days when I had nothing to challenge me."

"Quite frankly, I missed being involved in the immediate business of baseball, something that had been an important of my life ever since I started as a player back in Youngstown of the Middle Atlantic League in 1939."

At an early age he realized he did not have the playing potential of his father or his two major league brothers. So he opted for a baseball administrative career.

"As league president," he said, "I've seen a lot of ways of doing things in baseball. And, to be candid, I had been thinking of seeking some more active role in baseball for several years."

"When the Columbus opportunity came up...and I saw what the county was doing to what had been one of minor league baseball's greatest parks, I knew I had to consider the job.

"It's just fabulous what they have done with that place. The remodeled stadium—actually, that's a misnomer because it's almost new—will become a showplace of baseball. It will be an example everyone in the minors will watch and want to emulate."

"The affiliation with the Pirates is ideal. Columbus is Mr. (John) Galbreath's home. There's no question that he and the Pirates will provide a competition Triple-A club in Columbus. They had an excellent working relationship for years before the ball club left Columbus."

"And that was simply because the ball park was no longer adequate for them to keep a team there."

Bjorn Borg favored in Stockholm Open

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Bjorn Borg may be seeded second to Jimmy Connors in the $150,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Tournament, but there is no doubt he is the sentimental favorite of the crowds.

Before advancing to today's quarter-finals with a hardfought 6-2, 6-7, 7-6 triumph over Britain's John Lloyd Thursday, Borg was honored in a colorful ceremony by King Carl XVI Gustaf and Queen Silvia of Sweden. Borg and the other members of Sweden's Davis Cup team were presented a royal gold medal of first class in recognition of Sweden winning the Davis Cup for the first time last year.

The South Central Ohio League wraps up its football season this week with two league games and three non-league encounters.

For the forecasters, many of them can boast because Miami Trace, everyone's pre-season favorite, has the SCOL crown on ice. All that remains is a possible gold football for the Trace trophy case.

This week, the fabled Fayette County crown is up for grabs as Washington C.H. and Miami Trace go at each other. This game could mean the upset of the year or a 10-0 season.

This game, called everything from a bugaboo to a grudge match, is really none of those things. As Panther head coach Fred Zechman said, "There are no strangers involved."

games are Greenfield McClain at Frankfort Adena, Wilmington at Teays Valley, and Madison Plains at Springboro.

Channel 3 will provide a live broadcast of the Washington C.H.-Miami Trace football game Friday night. The live broadcast will be audio only and the game will be telecast on Saturday afternoon. WCHO Radio will also provide an audio broadcast of the game Friday evening from Gardner Park.

MIAMI TRACE AT WASH. C.H.

The fabled county crown is on the line as well as a gold football for the Panthers.

The Panthers have a tremendous wealth of talent starting with quarterback Art Schlichter. Schlichter has passed for over 1500 yards this season and has completed almost 70 per cent of his throws.

Seniors Rex Coe and Dan Gifford are breakaway threats in the backfield and junior split end Bill Hanners and tight end Joe Black are definite long bomb threats.

But, the Lions have talent also, with quarterback Mark Heiny. The senior signal-caller, out of the league limelight most of the season because of Schlichter's outstanding year has passed for nearly 1000 yards.

Tailback Jeff Elliott is a threat to score everytime he handles the ball and wingback Terry Wilson has 25 receptions this year for 317 yards and five touchdowns.

The defenses stack up nearly identical with a slight edge going to Trace. Neither team will "out-talent" the other, but after 10 p.m. on Friday night, the Panthers will be seeing gold. Miami Trace 28, Washington C.H. 7.

HILLSBORO AT CIRCLEVILLE

Hillsboro has had it rough this season and so have the Tigers. Picked to be at the top of the SCOL standings, Circleville hasn't won in four weeks. Hillsboro's only league victim this year is Madison Plains.

Circleville has been outscored 119-19 in their last three games. Seniors like Frank Merrill and Bill Mogan do not want to wind up their grid careers with a loss after winning years with Biff Bumgarner and company.

The Indians, faltering last week against Zanesville Rosecrans, have had numerous injuries and have even contemplated dropping out of the SCOL.

They will be sailing into a mean pack of Tigers Friday night and the Indians should be mauled. Circleville 26, Hillsboro 0.

McCLAIN AT ADENA

After losing all title hopes last week with a 42-3 loss to Miami Trace, coach Fred Brisker and his boys will be looking to take it out on someone.

Frankfort Adena, ranked 15th in their region of the Class A computer poll, don't seem much of a problem to the Tigers.

Look for Tony Anderson to have the ball much of the time looking for a 1000-yard season and Steve Weaver to throw a lot to Eric Dunson. The results should not be good for Adena. McClain 33, Adena 6.

WILMINGTON AT TEAYS VALLEY

The Hurricane had a big game last week against Madison Plains, killing them 56-6.

Gary Williams and Bruce McKee had outstanding performances in that game and they should get the same kind of job done this time out.

Teays Valley is only ranked 43rd in the Harbin computer poll in Class AA while Wilmington is 32nd in their region of Class AAA.

Look for Williams to throw, run, and kick for a lot of points and McKee to run over 100 yards. Wilmington 35, Teays Valley 7.

PLAINS AT SPRINGBORO

Madison Plains, at 9-6 in SCOL play, hasn't exactly been a whirlwind on the gridiron. But, with only 25 players left of the 40 that began the season, they haven't done badly.

Springboro is ranked 39th in Region 8 of Class AA in the Harbin computer poll while Plains is ranked 60th in the same region, only eight spots out of last place.

All this adds up to a Springboro win. Who am I to argue with Jack Harbin and his computer? Springboro 21, Madison Plains 8.

THE STEEL CURTAIN — Pittsburgh Steelers' John Benasak (76) Ernie Holmes (63), Joe Greene (75) and Jack Ham (59), watch as teammate L.C. Greenwood hits Kansas City Chief's Pat McNeil (45) who fumbles the ball during a game at Kansas City. The ball was recovered by Jack Lambert (58) of the Steelers. The Chiefs were humbled by the Steelers, 45-0.

Wittenberg seeking fourth conference berth in row

Wittenberg, if it beats or ties host Muskingum Saturday, can earn a fourth straight berth in the Ohio Conference football championship game.

And Dave Maurer, the coach of the defending national Division II champion Tigers, likes the idea of qualifying against 1975 OC winner Muskingum.

"I think it's appropriate that since we lost the conference championship to Muskingum last year," he said, "we would have to beat the defending champs to win it back."

If it wins, Wittenberg would finish its Red Division work with a 5-0 record. If the Tigers lose, they would be 4-1 with Muskingum and Ohio Northern, providing the Polar Bears win at Heidelberg.

In the latter case, Ohio Northern would earn a chance to face Blue Division champion Baldwin-Wallace in the OC title game Saturday, Nov. 27, at Berea. Muskingum and Wittenberg would be eliminated because of their 1975 championship appearances.

Meanwhile, Ohio State and Ball State can lock up major conference championships.

The Buckeyes, eighth ranked nationally, can be certain of a Big Ten title share by winning at Minnesota. Ball State can claim the undisputed Mid-American crown if it trims visiting Western Michigan.

In the Hoosier-Buckeye, Findlay and Defiance still nurse hopes of a title share with Hanover going into the final round of games Saturday.

For that to happen, Findlay has to master invading Hanover and Defiance must win at Manchester. The three would finish with 6-2-0 league records and split the championship.

In other Mid-American games Saturday, Kent State (3-2 league) plays at Miami (2-3) and Central Michigan (3-2) at Northern Illinois (0-3).

Main independent action has Ohio University (6-3 over-all) at Cincinnati (6-2), Bowling Green (5-4) entertaining Southern Illinois (6-3), Toledo (2-7) against visiting Marshall (5-4) at night, Akron (7-2) at Western Kentucky, Dayton (4-5) at Temple, Ashland (6-3) at Wayne State and Youngstown (3-6) at Central State (6-2).

In other contests, Baldwin-Wallace is at Mount Union, Denison at Ohio Wesleyan, Otterbein at Marietta, Wooster at Capital, Centre at Kenyon, John Carroll at Oberlin, Bluffton at Wilmington and Case Reserve at Hiram.

Brian Sipe taking Phipps' place

BEREA, Ohio (AP) — Brian Sipe only had to be patient for three quarters of one football game—a much easier wait than Mike Phipps had and now faces again.

Cleveland Browns Coach Forrest Gregg confirmed Monday Sipe will start at quarterback next Sunday against the Philadelphia Eagles as the 5-4 Browns continue their surprising quest for a postseason playoff berth.

Gregg became embroiled in controversy last week when he named Phipps—out seven weeks with an injury—as the starting quarterback in Sunday's game at Houston. The Browns won the game 21-7, but Phipps went stoically to the sidelines in the fourth quarter as Sipe came in to lead a surge that broke open an 8-7 game.

Sipe, who had started each of the seven games during the time Phipps was injured, drove the Browns to two touchdowns and had them back at the one-yard line when the game ended.

Gregg, who took a great deal of heat from the media and fans for his decision to bench Sipe after an uninspired effort at Cincinnati, said, "I think Mike (Phipps) played about as well as we could expect him to play after being out of action for so long. A lot of important things happened out there; things that weren't under Mike's control, like dropped passes, fumbles and our backs not picking up Houston's blitzes in the first half."

"But, I'd like to make something clear," the second-year coach added. "When I start a quarterback in a football game, I fully expect that quarterback to finish the game. I don't ever like to make changes like that."

but, Sunday I felt I had no alternative. Situations happen that make you do it.

"There were some people who misunderstood me when I said I'd leave Mike in all the way," he explained. "I qualified that by saying I'll always take a quarterback out if certain things happen. He (Phipps) wasn't producing, so I put Brian in there."

Cleveland running back Greg Pruitt darted for 79 yards rushing against the Oilers despite a painful ankle injury, suffered three weeks ago. He remains a question mark for Sunday.

Gregg said he was particularly pleased by the job his defense did against the Oilers.

MIAMI TRACE RESERVES — The Miami Trace reserve volleyball team finished their 1976 season with a 8-4 record.

The Suellen Radabaugh coached team won their final games over Washington C.H.

Ken Riley ponders John Hadl's moves

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals cornerback Ken Riley is spending this week inside John Hadl's head.

Riley, an ex-quarterback who successfully made the jump to defense, is making mental preparations for Sunday's National Football League game with the Houston Oilers.

He has a strong idea what the Bengals top-ranked pass defense can expect from Hadl, who is replacing the injured Dan Pastorini.

"John loves to throw the football," said Riley, the Bengals' all time interception leader with 34.

"He might not have the arm strength of Pastorini, but he makes up for it in smarts. After 15-16 years in the league, he is very good at reading defenses," said the 29-year-old native of Bartow, Fla.

"We think he'll probably throw a lot of inside stuff," said Riley. "We've got to stop the deep pass, the quick stuff that Ken Burrough or Billy (White Shoes) Johnson might break loose on."

Riley is a key reason why the Bengals have had the top defensive secondary in the AFC for the past two years.

"We had the top pass defense in the league last year, but nobody heard much about it," said Riley, who shares the club lead in interceptions with Tommy Casanova. Both have five thefts.

The Bengals, with 16 interceptions in nine games, are threatening the club record of 27 set in 1971.

"Coy Bacon has made the big difference," said Riley. "The pass rush is the key." The Bengals front four has more than 30 sacks so far to rank among the NFL's top six in that category.

Champions return in cross country

BEACHWOOD, Ohio (AP) — Both the defending individual champion and the defending team champion will be back to defend their NCAA Division III Cross-Country titles here Saturday at Highland Hills Country Club.

Vince Fleming of the University of Lowell, Lowell, Mass. will try to protect his title, as will North Central College of Naperville, Ill.

A field of more than 650 runners is expected for the race, covering 8,000 meters — about five miles.

Tribe chiefs seek meet with two players

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ted Bonda, president of the Cleveland Indians, says he will try to set up a meeting with free agents Wayne Garland and Don Baylor next week.

Bonda would not comment Thursday on a report that both players have been offered contracts worth about $1 million over a period of four or five years.

Jerry Kapstein, who represents both players, also declined comment on the Cleveland bid.

Dave Cowens in seclusion; personal 'leave of absence'

BOSTON (AP) — With AllStar center Dave Cowens still in seclusion while on a non-paid leave of absence "for personal reasons," the Boston Celtics plan to employ their new 1-2-3 punch tonight in a National Basketball Association game against the New Orleans Jazz.

The Celtics withstood the shock of Cowens' unexpected departure and snapped a fourgame losing streak with a 117-112 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers Wednesday night at the Garden.

Cowens was quoted in a copyrighted story in the Boston Herald American today as saying he left the team to "do all the things I haven't been able to do over the last 10 years."

"I've created quite a stir, I know, but I had to do the right thing. It just got to a point where I felt guilty taking my salary from the Celtics."

"I just wasn't making a contribution or helping the team, I had no motivation or enthusiasm," he was quoted as saying.

Veteran sharpshooter Jo Jo White, sounding the old theatrical theme "the show must go on," went out and scored 28 points against the Lakers.

One hour after the Celtics announced that Cowens had been granted his requested leave "for an indefinite period," Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn made a quick decision. To fill in for Cowens, and to go against 7-foot-3½ Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Heinsohn started seldom-used Jimmy Ard.

AP Newsfeatures

A hacksaw is one of those tools which you don't need very often, but when you do, there is no substitute. Since it is relatively inexpensive, it is something that belongs in every home workshop.

Used principally for cutting metal, the hacksaw must be used properly in order to obtain effective results. No matter how much experience you have had in using the ordinary cross-cut saw for wood, it will do you little good in learning the techniques of using a hacksaw. In fact, if you attempt to use it in the same manner as a crosscut saw, you will run into nothing but trouble.

A crosscut saw is used at an angle. A hacksaw is held and used horizontally. A crosscut saw is pushed and pulled. A hacksaw is pushed only, since it is meant to cut only on the forward stroke. Finally, wood can often be cut with a crosscut saw while the wood is being held with one hand and a knee. A hacksaw should only be used on metal which is firmly in place or held that way in a vise.

In selecting a hacksaw, it is wise to get one which has an adjustable frame so that it will hold blades of different sizes. The blades are rated by their pitch, which means the number of teeth per inch. A blade said to have a pitch of 18 is one with 18 teeth per inch. Those with 14 and 18 teeth per inch work best with heavier metals. When you buy a hacksaw, get at least two and preferably three or four blades with different pitches.

A blade is always placed in the frame with the teeth pointing away from the handle. Once the metal has been secured, place one hand on the handle and one hand on the part of the frame the farthest away from you. As you move forward with the saw, apply light pressure for light materials, stronger pressure with heavy materials. Again, a reminder that the blade does its cutting on the forward stroke, so as you bring back the saw, release the pressure entirely so that the saw does not engage the work. Take long, even strokes in a kind of rhythmic action, bringing all or most of the blade's teeth into contact with the metal.

If you have done any work with hacksaw blades, you know that occasionally one of them breaks. There are a number of reasons why this occurs. One is that the tension on the blade was too tight or too loose. The frame has a tension adjustment, usually manipulated with a wingnut. The nut is turned clockwise until it is fairly tight. One part of a turn too much and the blade will have too much tension. One part too little and it will have too little tension. As you begin to cut, if the blade begins to bend, it is likely that there is too little tension. It may sound rather complicated, but after you have used a hacksaw a few times, you will get the knack of it and know immediately when you have tightened the wingnut or other manipulative device just right.

The ordinary hacksaw blade is made of high-speed steel, which is perfect for most cutting jobs. But there are many other types of blades for special purposes, including one called a jeweler's blade for use in a jeweler's hacksaw for cutting very thin metal. Also useful is a minihacksaw, which takes standard blades but has a small, curved frame that enables it to fit in places where an ordinary hacksaw can't be used.

Heavy shelling hits sectors of Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy shelling broke out between the Christian and Moslem sectors of Beirut today despite the presence of thousands of Syrian troops ringing the city to enforce the three-week-old cease-fire.

A crowded market in the Moslem sector received several direct hits that killed a dozen civilians, civil defense rescue teams on the spot reported.

Loudspeaker vans and jeeps toured the area urging the people to get off the streets. The Lebanese Arab army, made up of deserters from the Lebanese army, threatened to strike back "mercilessly" at the Christian half of the city unless the Syrians stopped the Christian bombardment.

"Damn the Arab deterrent forces," said a young boy standing beside the blood of a victim. "Why don't they come here?"

Artillery in the Moslem sector began firing at random into the Christian sector.

It was the second major break in the truce in less than 24 hours. Savage house-to-house fighting broke out Thursday afternoon between Christian militiamen and radical Palestinians in the ravaged downtown commercial center of Beirut, causing many fires in the adjacent port area. Hospitals and militia sources reported more than 15 persons killed, one of the highest tolls since the cease-fire was declared Oct. 21.

Meanwhile, Syrian armored columns

were consolidating their hold on the city's rear areas, tearing down street barricades and taking over snipers' nests, in preparation for the dispatch of forces to establish a buffer zone through the middle of the city.

Pierre Gemayel, whose Phalange party has the largest Christian militia, said the fighting and an attempt on the life of Christian politician Raymond Edde were "last-minute desperate attempts to sabotage the peacemaking process in Lebanon."

"But these attempts are doomed because 95 per cent of the Lebanese and Palestinians are for peace," Gemayel said. "The remaining five per cent of radicals can easily be dealt with. Their days are numbered."

Edde, an unsuccessful candidate for president last March, said he was getting out of his car Thursday afternoon when four men in a car pulled up and one of them opened fire with a submachine gun. A bullet grazed his hip.

Other Christian leaders, the leftist Lebanese Moslem command and spokesmen for Palestinian chief Yasir Arafat all denounced the assassination attempt and other cease-fire infractions.

Arafat, the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was reported to have warned radical Palestinian groups that reject his leadership that his men would disarm them by force if they did not respect the truce and give up their heavy arms.

Lows tonight will be in the teens and the lower 20s. Sunday's temperatures will again be mostly in the 30s but by Monday some readings will go into the 40s. This time of year, average highs are around 50 in northern Ohio and in the low to mid 50s in southern Ohio.

Conditions continued cold over Ohio today as well as over much of the northern part of the country. A very strong high pressure was over the Dakotas and, as a result, the air flow across Ohio was from the frigid northwest.

The high will move south to southeast. By Saturday night it will move into the gulf states. At that time, another cold front will move out of Canada toward Ohio. Snow flurries should occur over much of the northern two-thirds of the state today, but by afternoon they should be confined to the northern third.

A trace of snow fell overnight at official observation points. At 6 a.m. temperatures ranged from 17 degrees at Toledo to 32 degrees near Chesapeake.

At Toledo and Findlay the temperatures were close to the record lows for today. Today's highs were to be mostly in the 30s.

Mostly fair Sunday, a chance of snow Monday and clearing Tuesday.

Woman raises old folks

CLEVELAND (AP) — When 79-year-old Winifred D. Koch finished raising 17 children, she began to get lonely. So, "I started raising old people," she says.

Mrs. Koch raised children of her own and 11 of her late husband's by a previous marriage. She then accepted youngsters for brief periods from an orphanage. And now, she is vice president of the Full Time Club for the elderly in the Cleveland suburb of North Olmsted where she lives.

Besides her children, the orphans and her old people, there are her grandchildren.

"I think there are 48," she said. "I quit counting. There are 16 great-grandchildren. Just a few."

She now lives alone, although her family is nearby. But that's the way she prefers it.

"As long as I can function I will stay on my own," she said. "I just plan to keep raising my grandchildren. Just to have my children around is all I want."

In Double Play game

Greenfield woman wins $51,000 lottery prize

In Ohio's Lottery Double Play, a game in which three contestants participate, the object is to have your color turned up five times before one of the other contestants. The first place prize is $50,000, plus a bonus of $1,000 each time a contestant calls a number behind which is the color he or she is representing.

Mrs. Charlotte Easter, of Greenfield, having purchased a winning lottery ticket at Uhl's IGA grocery, in Greenfield, which is owned by her in-laws, and traveled to Cleveland on Thursday assured that she would go home with at least the guaranteed minimum prize of $5,000.

However, Mrs. Easter, who looked unbelievably calm as she appeared on the televised lottery program, was to go on to much bigger and better things. Competing with Maurice Etherington, of Greenfield, Ind., and Bertha Pedery, of Cleveland, Mrs. Easter, who was dressed in red and had red as her lottery color, racked up $51,000 in record time. Etherington won $25,000 and Mrs. Pedery won $10,000 as their respective colors were turned up five times.

After winning the $50,000 top prize, plus $1,000 for calling a number which represented her own color, Mrs. Easter narrowly missed winning another $10,000 in the spinning of the color wheel. The wheel stopped one notch from red, landing on blue, which determined blue as the winning color of the week.

The 38-year-old Mrs. Easter, who was unavailable for comment Friday morning, helps out at Uhl's IGA where her husband, Dick, is the meat department supervisor. They have one teenage son, Dale.

About six months ago, Bobbie Taylor, of Greenfield, bought a lottery ticket at Uhl's IGA and was the winner of $10,000.

MEANWHILE, 70-year-old William Svendsen of Springfield says winning $250,000 in the Ohio lottery will mean an early celebration of their

Over plans for quick economy boost

Carter-Burns clash nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — Arthur Burns says he intends to cooperate with the Carter administration and the new Congress, but the Federal Reserve Board chairman also warns against any Democratic efforts to give the economy a quick boost.

Burns told the Senate Banking Committee on Thursday that there is a "clear need" for expansion of the economies of industrial nations. But he said the traditional methods of economic stimulation could be counterproductive.

President-elect Jimmy Carter has said he would consider a tax cut if the economy does not pick up before he takes office in January.

Burns, 72, whose term as Fed chairman does not expire until 1978, said it would be "a ruinous policy" for the Fed to suddenly take all restraint off the money supply.

Burns' testimony did little to quell speculation that there could be an early clash between him and Carter on economic policy.

Carter is committed to promoting programs to create jobs, but Burns said past methods of stimulating employment, such as budget deficits and easy credit, "cannot work well in an environment that has become highly sensitive to inflationary fears and expectations."

"Lasting prosperity will not be achieved until our country solves its chronic problem of inflation," he said.

When Burns said the Fed's new targets for money growth — down to 6.5 per cent from 7 per cent previously — did not represent a tightening of the money supply, committee chairman Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., expressed dismay.

"You're a very convincing man, but what you are trying to convince me of is that down is really up...It's hard to adjust to the idea that 6.5 per cent is higher than 7 per cent," Proxmire said.

The rate of growth of the nation's money supply is important to the economy because it influences interest rates, which in turn influence borrowing by business and consumers. Higher interest rates usually mean slower growth; lower interest rates promote faster growth.

Proxmire warned that Congress may restrict the Fed's independence if the Fed does not cooperate in its money policies.

Wisconsin businessman reportedly interested

By PHIL LEWIS

Record-Herald City Editor

NEW MARTINSBURG — Due to apparent financial problems Buckeye Hills Country Club is about to change hands.

Operation of the 18-hole golf course which opened in 1971 has been turned over to the Farmers Home Administration. The federal government agency is seeking a buyer for the 231-acre country club.

The FHA assumed control of the deed in early November after Buckeye Hills Country Club, a non-profit corporation, was unable to pay the principal on a government loan. The debt was erased, according to club president Walter Hockaday, after the property was transferred to the FHA.

Members of the semi-private club, which straddles the Fayette-Highland county line, met in September to discuss the financial problems. The club has been reportedly unable to pay the principal on the loan for the past eight years. At that meeting the FHA proposed the deed be transferred and the property sold.

An FHA spokesman, Ralph Voorhis, in the Columbus office said several offers were being entertained and the land would be sold to the highest bidder.

Although there had been talk of selling a parcel of the land south of the golf course for residential use, Voorhis said the 231-acre property would be sold as "a unit package."

The FHA would not release the names of interested buyers or comment on how far along negotiations had gone. However, Hockaday reported that a Wisconsin bowling alley proprietor was interested in the property and a final deal was drawing near.

When contacted again, the FHA confirmed the report that Allan Clark of Lake Geneva Wis., had submitted an offer, but nothing had been finalized and offers were still being accepted. Clark reported that he was "very interested" in purchasing the country club. He said he was contacted by a Lansing, Mich. real estate firm about the property.

Clark has just sold his bowling alley in Lake Geneva Wis., but he is still in doubt when the final sale will be approved. He said the FHA reported that there had been a "slight snag" in the sale negotiations earlier this week.

He said he hoped the deal would be finalized soon, so a spring golf program could be planned for next year. Clark is planning to operate the golf course, club house and swimming pool on a semi-private basis. He said he would rely on memberships as well as some public use similar to the policy in past years.

Several area residents had pondered purchasing the country club property.

Robert J. Snider, 705 McClurthy Way, had filed for articles of incorporation earlier this month with Secretary of State Ted W. Brown under the name of Buckeye Hills Country Club, Inc.

Snider, a local accountant, said he was an agent for a group wishing to purchase the property, but the plan has been dropped.

While negotiations continue, Hockaday said the course is still open for club members.

Carter aides competing for power

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Jimmy Carter says he likes competition among his staff members, but there are signs he may be getting more than he wanted.

The gentle tug-of-war between the old Carter hands and the button-down newcomers that simmered during the campaign is picking up now that the high-stakes game of building an administration has begun.

One sign this week was the thick memo that campaign manager Hamilton Jordan sent to Carter suggesting ways to staff his administration.

This product duplicates to a degree the voluminous recommendations of Carter's transition staff, headed by Atlanta lawyer Jack Watson.

A former campaign Carter aide said Jordan was "moving to head off Watson."

One Carter insider, referring to the Watson-Jordan situation, said: "I guess we can expect more of that. I don't think there's any doubt Jimmy's going to receive competing recommendations, and he's not going to say, 'Hey, stop that,' because he likes competition among the corps."

"Jimmy's pretty happy with what's going on," this source said.

What's going on apparently is an effort by Jordan to re-establish himself in the Carter hierarchy now that his campaign job is over.

The pecking order among the Carter cadre turns largely on how long and how well a member has known the chief. The senior member, Charles Kirbo, goes back to 1962, when he won a lawsuit that saved Carter's election to the state Senate from alleged vote fraud by the opposition.

Jordan came in the next group, consisting of those who worked for Carter in his losing bid for the governorship in 1966. Press Secretary Jody Powell joined in 1970 when Carter ran for governor again and won, and he has been one of Carter's closest aides ever since.

Jordan, meantime, served as Carter's executive secretary and began planning the drive that climaxed this month with a Cinderella capture of the White House. Friends say Jordan fully expected that when the battle was won, he would resume his place at Carter's right hand in building the new administration.

Last summer, however, Watson proposed to Carter a plan for preparing the White House transition in advance and laying the groundwork for anticipated legislative programs and executive initiatives.

The idea was to enable Carter to hit Washington on the run and make his imprint quickly instead of settling slowly into the job the way most presidents have, with the exception of Franklin Roosevelt's first 100 days which had been planned by a similar "brain trust."

It suited Carter's style, and he bought it. Watson set up shop shortly after the Democratic party nominated Carter last summer. The result was a detailed presidential preparation which even

Federal income tax form more complicated

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you get a pocket calculator for Christmas, it's likely to come in handy when you tote up your federal income tax after the New Year.

Internal Revenue Service Commissioner Donald C. Alexander is warning taxpayers that completing the new tax return "could be more difficult" than in the past. One reason is the amount of math that will be required for the first time for many taxpayers.

Alexander's message is contained in an introduction to the new 1040, the so-called long form, that the IRS released

Thursday.

This year, hundreds of thousands of taxpayers who had become accustomed to just adding up their income and then finding their taxes on a table will now have to take several other steps.

They'll start by adding up their income, as they have in the past. But then they will have to subtract either standard or itemized deductions and then personal exemptions to reach taxable income. Only at that point could new tables be used to find the tax load.

An IRS spokesman said the service is concerned that this single change required by Congress will result in many more arithmetic errors than in previous years. The congressional tax-writing committees have claimed the change will simplify taxes by requiring only two pages of tax tables instead of the 10 used in the past.

Another change on the 1976 form involves the $30 credit for each taxpayer and dependent. It used to be a simple subtraction from taxes. This year it has been increased to $35, but also has an added complication. A taxpayer will have to decide whether a straight $35 credit is best or whether he should take the optional 2 per cent of taxable income up to a maximum $180 for most returns.

Taxpayers can expect to receive their forms by mid-January, about two weeks later than usual. Alexander said the delay results from late passage in the Congress of 1976 tax legislation.

In addition to the changes in computing taxes and the personal exemption credit, taxpayers also will find changes that allow child-care expenses to be subtracted directly from taxes owed, an end to the sickpay income exclusion in favor of a disability income exclusion and a simplified and expanded credit for taxpayers over 65.

Ship sinks; crew rescue slated

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Tossed about in the Pacific's "worst weather of the year," some of the crewmen from the sunken lumber ship Carnelian-1 clung to floating logs from their vessel's scattered cargo and awaited rescue.

Two men were safely aboard the Panamanian-registered ship Hunter, itself in trouble with cargo shifting in its hold. Six others were rescued by the freighter Wisteria, which arrived on the scene, 1,400 miles northwest of Honolulu, about midnight Thursday.

A Japanese ship, Shunyo Maru, was expected there this morning, but a Coast Guard cutter dispatched from Alaska would not reach the scene until Saturday.

At last light on Thursday, the pilot of a Coast Guard plane flying above the scene said he could count fewer than half the ship's 33 crew members bobbing in the 20-foot seas.

The Wisteria's night-long rescue effort was aided by a flare dropped from a circling Air Force plane. But the Coast Guard, noting the difficult weather conditions, said most of the crewman could not be rescued before first light — about 1 p.m. EST.

Eight men were balanced on a logjam from the cargo of the sunken ship, and three more were perched atop an upside down lifeboat from the Carnelian-1.

"A few" others were seen in rubber rafts dropped from planes to the life-jacketed men, a Coast Guard spokesman said.

A second lifeboat from the sunken ship was spotted drifting out of reach.

The spokesman said the Coast Guard plane dropped six 20-man rubber rafts and survival kits containing fresh water, food, lights and flares to the men.

"We have confirmed that some of them have gotten into the rafts that we dropped," he said.

The 472-foot Hunter arrived about four hours after the crewmen abandoned the sinking Carnelian-1, but the spokesman said the shifting cargo sent it rolling on the rough seas and slowed rescue efforts.

The National Weather Service said one storm had raged through the area for "several days" and another was moving in from the northwest.

"They'll have a lull in the winds and then the next one is going to roll in on them," said meteorologist Emil Gunther. He estimated winds in the area had dropped from 60 miles per hour to 35.

"It's the worst weather of the year," said forecaster Bob Morrell.

Gunther said water temperatures in the area probably are a "fairly warm" 65 to 69 degrees.

The Carnelian-1 first radioed at 10:15 a.m. PST Thursday that a deckload of lumber had broken loose and tumbled over the side in the storm. Further transmissions indicated the ship was flooding and its pumps had failed.

At 12:55 p.m., the Coast Guard said, the radio operator of the 486-foot lumber carrier messaged he was leaving his radio to stand by his lifeboat station.

More than an hour later a Navy plane arrived to send back first reports of crewmen clinging to floating logs.

The spokesman said the Carnelian-1 disappeared beneath the waters some time after the men abandoned ship.

The Japan-bound lumber carrier was owned by the Mitsui OSK Line of Japan, according to the line's Seattle agents, William Diamond Co.

Stock list turns mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned mixed today after its brief turnaround on Thursday.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks was down more than two points after opening trades.

But advancing issues led those declining by an almost 3-2 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts attributed Thursday's moderate gain — after four straight days of decline — largely to technical forces triggered by the market's fall to a 10-month low.

And brokers said investors are still apprehensive over the continuing sluggishness of the economy, as well as uncertainty over how President-elect Jimmy Carter would do when in office.

Early prices today included General Motors, down 5/8 to 68 3/4; Tandy Corp., up 1/4 to 35 1/4; and Xerox Corp., down 1/2 to 57 1/2.

On Thursday, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 7.39 to 931.43, trimming its loss since the election to 34.66 points.

Advancing issues led those declining by about a 7-5 margin on the NYSE.

Volume on the Big Board slumped to 13.23 million shares, the lowest it has been in 5 1/2 weeks.

More snow on the way

By The Associated Press

Snow covered the Appalachians today and more was forecast for the Great Lakes region and parts of the West and the Southwest.

Travelers were warned of hazardous driving conditions in Tennessee, Kentucky, southeast Missouri and northwest Arkansas. As much as three inches of snow was expected with temperatures well below freezing.

Freezing rain and ice-covered roads also were predicted in the West where snow will not be heavy.

A traveler's advisory was posted for upper Michigan and parts of the Lower Peninsula. Locally heavy snow was expected in scattered areas of the central and lower Great Lakes and snow squalls in the western Great Lakes region.

Near freezing temperatures were expected in central Texas and a storm watch was posted over New Mexico where it continued cold and windy with increasing chances of snow.

Rain continued to fall in scattered portions of California.

Columbus fire fatal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Norwalk, Conn. man died in a two-alarm fire on the fifth floor of the Sheraton-Columbus Hotel early this morning, fire officials said.

The victim, whose body was found in the bathroom of his room, was unidentified pending notification of relatives. Authorities said he was alone in his room and died from smoke inhalation.

About 300 hotel guests from three floors were evacuated from the downtown building as firemen fought the blaze. They returned to their rooms about two hours after the fire was first reported.

Firemen believe the blaze started from a cigarette. Investigation continued today and no damage estimate was available. The fire was confined to the victim's room, authorities said.

Being wine taster not all it's thought to be

By MICHAEL RUBIN
Associated Press Writer
SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — It sounded like a wine lover's dream: be a wine judge and taste dozens of some of California's best wines.

But before it was over my tongue was pickled and puckered and my mouth felt like it had been marinated in a cask forgotten in some dark corner by the little old winemaker.

It seemed so inviting: an invitation to join six wine experts on a wine panel for the annual Sonoma County Harvest Fair judging. No one mentioned it would be work, three days of dawn-to-dusk, hard-core slurping.

Being a devotee of the grape, I couldn't turn down this opportunity.

But my mouth almost needed medical help some 350 glasses of wine later, and none of my friends was sympathetic. They thought I had enjoyed myself. But they failed to differentiate between wine drinking and wine tasting.

We wine experts — they did invite me to be a judge — must painfully and regretfully spit out each slurp after rolling it over and around our palates. Trying to take even a tiny sip of that many wines — more than 100 a day — would leave one's skull heavily overcast. It would be hard to tell the simple difference between red and white wines, much less any subtle nuance. It would even be hard to remember to go home at night.

This isn't to say that a trickle or two of some particularly delightful sample didn't infrequently slip down someone's throat. But it is, alas, infrequent.

That's the frustrating part. You come across something that tastes so good your ears wiggle, but all you've got is a dribble in your glass ... and you can't run out and buy some because you don't know which winery it's from — the wines are identified only by their type and numbers. No names, please.

It's all very strict. Hidden away in another room under secret code numbers, the wines are poured into numbered glasses, then brought to the judges' tables. There, the grapevine gurus carefully examine each wine making careful written notes on each facet of a wine's characteristics: color, smell, flavor. We dip into our knowledge of what a certain grape variety's wine tastes like — each has its own distinctions — and then try to decide how good, or bad, each sample is.

After sniffing and sipping we voted on each wine; either it won an award or it didn't.

Often a beautiful bouquet would entrance a judge, who eagerly tasted it. But on rare occasions one could hear a muffled, "Aargh, do I have to insult my mouth and actually taste this?" when someone felt it would be olfactory suicide to sip a bad try at winemaking.

And there were times when it was painful willpower to keep from gleefully imbibing some enological excellence.

So there we were. Seven of us — Ruth Ellen Church of the Chicago Tribune, David Pursglove of the Washington Star, international wine writer Alexis Bespaloff, wine editor Henry Rubin of Bon Appetit Magazine — no relation — and Profs. James Guymon and Cornelius Ough of the University of California at Davis' School of Enology.

All of us were garbed in white laboratory coats to guard against some over-enthusiastic swirl bounding out of the glass to stain our clothing permanently. We sat at tables layered with white tablecloths. Bright klieg lights blazed over our shoulders to provide a perfect background under which to judge the wines' colors.

With few words we set to our task. The first series of shimmering yellow-gold white wines came out, beginning what became a series of unending waves of wine glasses. We eagerly worked our way through the opening rounds of white wines, joyous fruity fragrances and perfumes filling our noses.

Things got more difficult when we returned after a brief break and found awaiting our opinion 18 numbered glasses of Pinot Chardonnays, the finest white wine grape of California and France. There were the tiniest subtleties of grape flavor and intensity to look for as well as variations of wood aging or lack of it.

Our knees got wobbly by late afternoon of the second day when, already weary, we came face-to-face with 25 potent Zinfandels, the heady berryish red wine. There were so many of them it took two rows to surround each judge, and it took a careful touch to keep from sending rows of glasses sprawling.

Barely had we sipped our way through, aided by increasingly frequent gulps of water to clear our palates, when the "coup de mouth" appeared: 22 Cabernet Sauvignons — the full, assertive variety of French Bordeaux grape, the one which makes California's best red wine.

When it was over we were all puckered out. In fact at a beautiful Sonoma County Winegrowers Association dinner that evening, despite a groaning table laden with the area's finest fine wines, three judges sheepishly wolfed down an ice cold beer.

But like the truehearts we were, we all returned to the pleasures of the grape for dinnertime. And, properly refreshed, we poured ourselves into our final day of judging the next morning.

At the end of three days they told us we each had tasted 347 separate glasses of wine; averaged 1,388 tastes each; as a group gone through 2,429 glasses of wine and proclaimed our opinions based on a total of 9,716 tastes. No count was made of stained teeth.

We awarded seven gold medals to some outstanding wines.

That should have been enough, but let me tell you about the dynamite wine I had with dinner that night ...

Ohio Perspective

New court makeup to hurt remap

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) —

Democrats' new 4-3 majority on the Ohio Supreme Court may give GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes a major obstacle in his battle to redistrict the Democratic legislature.

One official says it could mean the end of the road for the effort launched by Rhodes early this year as member and chairman of the State Apportionment Board.

He claims the board, under Democratic control when it redrew Senate and House districts in 1971, violated Ohio Constitutional guidelines.

His challenge now is pending in the U.S. Court of Appeals, 6th Circuit, in Cincinnati.

The federal court case seeks to lift a 1973 injunction which has kept Rhodes out of the state court system where the challenge eventually would have to be decided. The injunction was issued by U.S. District Judge Frank J. Battisti of Cleveland after a three-judge panel ruled that the present districts comply with the U.S. Constitution. Battisti is a Democrat.

In the Nov. 2 election, Democrats Ralph Locher of Cleveland and A. William Sweeney of Cincinnati captured the Supreme Court seats of two retiring Republicans, giving their party its first domination of the court in 16 years.

Candidates for the court run without party designation on ballots, and it is an unwritten rule that decisions of the tribunal not be made on the basis of politics. Over the years, there has been much room to speculate over how well that rule is observed.

House Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, an attorney, charged indirectly that Battisti's injunction stemmed from party loyalty, without mentioning the judge by name.

He said if the new Democratic court "is as partisan as some other courts and one judge, then any chance for the success of the governor's challenge has been eliminated."

Republicans have not been reluctant over the years to turn to the court—5-2 Republican in recent years—when they had battles with Democrats they otherwise couldn't win.

The most recent case involved the "Six Day War" at the end of former Gov. John J. Gilligan's term, when Democrats rushed six bills through the legislature before Rhodes took office. The court invalidated the bills 5-2 along party lines.

Rhodes may not be governor today except for a similar party line decision in 1974 that cleared the way for his third term.

In that case, the governor called into question the two-term limitation on governors, saying the restriction applied only to consecutive terms and claiming he was eligible to run again after sitting one out.

The court agreed, although some legal spokesmen say the decision circumvented the intent of the legislature and voters in adopting the limitation.

Hunt trial defense set

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP) — The defense was to begin presenting its case today in the trial of James Robert Hunt, a 24-year-old deaf mute charged with the murder of a neighbor woman.

Defense attorney Thomas Twyford said he did not intend to place Hunt on the stand.

The state rested its case Thursday. The court then recessed until today at the request of Twyford, who said he was surprised by the prosecution's early windup.

After the recess, Twyford said the prosecution finished its case early because, "they didn't have any evidence except one lousy fingerprint, and that's it."

A fingerprint of Hunt was found on an inside door window of the car belonging to the murder victim, Ruth Norleen Arledge, 56. The car was parked less than a mile from where the beaten body of

Mrs. Arledge was found in March 1974 in Tar Hollow State Forest north of here.

"I can explain the fingerprint and will in court," Twyford promised.

Two court-appointed translators have been interpreting court proceedings for Hunt, who spent two years in a state mental institution learning sign language to assist in his defense.

Unheralded near-miss

Science fiction often places Earth in the path of an Approaching Object, with astronomers warning of imminent disaster while the world tensely awaits its fate. There was a real-life episode much like this a few years ago when a comet was observed heading for our planet. Though few people expected the worst, the episode was exciting while it lasted.

Those who relish that kind of excitement may feel cheated at word that a similar incident last month went unnoticed. Except, of course, by astronomers, who kept an eye on an asteroid as it approached Earth and whisked past a mere three-fourths of a million miles away. By astronomical standards, enough of a near-miss to send a little chill on a spinal journey!

Were an asteroid to collide with

Earth it would create havoc - quite possibly, depending on the object's size, more havoc than any natural disaster on record. So perhaps it is just as well that the experts kept their counsel. People might have worried. And worrying just doesn't have much effect on the trajectories of comets, tooling about the universe in compliance with the impartial laws of physics.

THESE DAYS By John Chamberlain

A matter of unfinished business

The election campaign left many issues dangling, with no commonsense answers suggested. Among them were the status of the B-1 bomber, which was under fire for being an anachronistic proposal in the age of the intercontinental ballistic missile. A second unsettled issue was the plethora of oil that the Alaska pipeline will soon be delivering to ports on the Pacific Coast with no cheap way in sight to bring it to the American Middle West and the industrial Northeast.

The critics of the B-1 have Soviet Russia in mind when they say it would be a useless supplement to the various missiles that would be raining ruin on both sides if ever the big all-out conflict between the superpowers were to be unleashed. Assuming that the ultimate stupidity of atomic warfare is in the cards, the enemies of the B-1 have a point.

But if we are to assume there will be lesser trouble involving critical U.S. interests in the future (say in Latin America), the B-1 might be a most useful addition to the U.S. armaments. In the first place, its existence would be a prime deterrent. Secondly, in a small war fought with conventional firepower, it would be the logical successor to the aging B-52 which, if it did not bring victory against the North Vietnamese Communists, at least kept us going until peace of a sort had been restored by politicians who proved too inept to take advantage of it.

The oil from the Alaskan North Slope has created a political issue that makes no economic sense. If current policy persists, the oil companies that have built the Alyeska pipeline through the North Country wilderness to the ice-free port of Valdez on the Pacific will be limited to marketing it in the "lower 48" states and in U.S. overseas areas. The argument is that, with our oil imports from the OPEC countries wrecking our balance of trade, we cannot afford to let a single drop of Alaskan oil go to a non-American consumer.

The whole quarrel, however, defies the basic rudiments of Ricardian economics. Apparently our legislators have forgotten, if they ever knew, the commonsense aspects of David Ricardo's "law of comparative advantage." The application of this law to the disposition of Alaskan oil would not entail adding a nickel to our trade balance with the Arabs.

The trick would be to sell the excess of North Slope oil to the Japanese in return for the barter of due bills (so to speak) entitling us to equal amounts of oil from the Persian Gulf. The Persian Gulf oil would move to American Atlantic ports at considerably less cost than it would take to bring Alaskan oil through the Panama Canal or around Cape Horn. Everyone would gain, with completely neutral effects on the balance of trade bottom line. The deal would not have to be for any longer than it will take for new pipelines to be constructed from Pacific Coast oil terminals to existing forwarding facilities in Texas or the plains states of the upper Middle West.

In applying elementary "law of comparative advantage" thinking to Alaskan oil shipments the politicians would be engaging in the sort of barter arrangements that is common between multinational companies. The home factories of the Montedison company of Italy, for example, trade industrial chemicals with American companies in Europe, while subsidiaries of the Italian firm in the U.S. do the same in America. The whole business washes out with no impact on the Italian-American balance of international payments.

We pay a big price for sending politicians to Washington who have forgotten college freshman economics. We should, of course, arrange to make all that Alaskan oil available to the lower 48 states for reasons of ultimate military security. But in the interim there is every economic reason to barter some North Slope oil to the Japanese in return for equal shipments of oil from Arabia.

Atwater's New History of Ohio in 1838 declared that there were 17,000 abolitionists in the state. Then, in Trumbull County alone, there were 2,249 enrolled members.—AP

"LIKE KOREANS, FOREFATHERS

CONTRIBUTIONS TO CONGRESSMEN!"

New GI benefit bill has strings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Future veterans of America's armed forces are going to have to give a little if they want Uncle Sam to help put them through college or graduate school when they return to civilian life.

The men and women who enlist after Dec. 31 will not be entitled automatically to the lucrative educational benefits that current members of the military and all veterans in recent years have shared.

But the Pentagon and the Veterans Administration are gearing up for an experimental new education program that will provide benefits for servicemen and women who are willing to put aside at least $50 a month for their own educational fund.

The experiment is a compromise written into the new GI bill that Congress passed in September. It will be reviewed in years.

Under the new program, those who join the military after Dec. 31 can gain the new educational benefits by contributing from $50 to $75 a month to the VA, up to a limit of $2,700 over the individual's military career. The government will match the contributions with $2 for each $1 invested.

A person may quit the program at the end of any 12-month period. Those who quit get their money back but in most cases they lose their rights to the government benefits.

The benefits may be used after release from active duty, provided that the person is not dishonorably discharged.

Under the system being phased out, veterans are paid up to $292 a month in educational benefits from 36 to 45 months if they meet certain requirements, such as 18 months of active duty. No contributions are required.

Current servicemen and women will be able to use those benefits for 10 years after leaving military service, or until the end of 1989, whichever comes first. Also eligible for these benefits will be anyone who enlists this year, even if he does not actually get into uniform until next year.

Education payments will be limited either to the number of months the member contributes or to 36 months, whichever is less. The amount of each individual's fund will be divided by the number of months participating to determine the monthly payments during schooling.

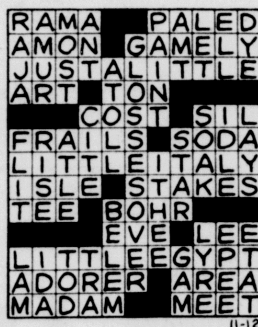

Benefits under the new program also must be used within 10 years after leaving military service. Unused contributions will be refunded.

This feature was a compromise with those who objected to the program being included in the VA budget since the old GI bill was designed basically for readjustment of those who served in wartime and not for a peacetime, all-volunteer military.

The census of 1950 reported that among the almost two million Ohioans only 66,020 over 20 years of age could not read or write.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Wants to herd sheep, not people

DEAR ABBY: My problem is my job. I am a bus driver in Tacoma, Wash. I can handle the traffic, but the people are driving me bananas. I've been driving a bus for four years now, and I don't know how I've lasted this long.

Can you give me some information on becoming a shepherd? A few months ago I read somewhere that there was a real need in the American Southwest for shepherds, but it was hard finding people who could cope with the isolation that went with the job.

Abby, all my life I've found it hard to deal with people. I crave isolation. I could go for weeks without seeing a human being and be perfectly content. I may be slightly weird, but this is me. Can you help me?

FED UP

DEAR FED UP: Shepherds tending American flocks have traditionally been Basques imported from Spain and sheepman occasionally complain that the immigration quotas shut off their supply of herders. Write to the U.S. Department of Agriculture for the name and address of sheep industry organizations. They'll tell you what, if any, opportunities exist to herd sheep instead of people.

DEAR ABBY: Three years ago I married a widower who had two daughters. This is my first marriage.

Beginning with Easter, then Mother's Day, then Memorial Day, then her birthday, followed by the anniversary of her death and ending with HER wedding anniversary, the two married daughters make a regular pilgrimage to the cemetery to visit their mother's grave.

I don't mind this, but I do mind the pressure they put on their father to go with them. On some of these occasions, I have accompanied him, but I feel as he does, that Mass and Communion are much more meaningful and not nearly as obnoxious. Don't misunderstand, I have not complained once, and never will, but I think six trips in five weeks to lay plastic flowers on the grave is overdoing it.

How should I handle it? My husband's daughters didn't make all these trips to their mother's grave before their father married me.

IRRITATED
DEAR IRRITATED: Continue to handle it as you have. Say nothing.

DEAR ABBY: One of your readers suggested national Daughter-in-Law Day. Well, I'm a daughter-in-law but I had all the honor I need in just knowing and loving a mother-in-law. I'll tell you about her.

She was a diamond in the rough, a tiny, fiery redhead. Had she been a man, she would have been a two-fisted hard-drinking gambler. She adored her son. No woman alive was good enough for him, but if one HAD been, it would have been me. When she had a snootful, she berated me, insulted me, baited me. She came very close to loving me, and perhaps she did.

I was with her the day she broke her hip. She was barefooted, in a char- treuse bathing suit, having just come in from a day at the local swimming hole with her two small grandsons and myself. That was the beginning of the end.

I gave her a permanent the day before she died, and as she left to go home, she put her freckled arms around my waist and in her deep, husky voice said, "I love you, honey." Those were her last words to me.

How I loved that tough old lady, and I miss her like hell.

One year ago: William O. Douglas retired from the U.S. Supreme Court because of failing health after setting a record of 36½ years on the Court.

Today's birthdays: Princess Grace of Monaco is 47. U.S. Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun is 68. Actress Kim Hunter is 54.

Thought for today: It is the malady of our age that the young are so busy teaching us that they have no time left to learn. — Eric Hoffer, American writer, born 1902.

Bicentennial footnote: Two-hundred years ago today, a North Carolina state constitution was adopted by the Provisional Congress in a tumultuous session in Halifax.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 13

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

Not much planetary help but you can, nevertheless, keep this day out of the mediocre column if you emphasize your innate enthusiasm and stick-to-itiveness.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

Need for caution continues. Be hasty in neither word nor deed. Day has pitfalls which you can avoid if on guard at all times.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

An average day which can be made much brighter, more meaningful with a little extra verve on your part. Get out and "mix." Some exciting new contacts possible.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Don't plan any hectic activities. Day will be more satisfactory if you can get off by yourself and do some constructive thinking.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Certain situations will be beyond your control now, so don't try to solve them on your own initiative. Ask advice from a trustworthy source.

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Some good news you've been hoping for won't come until the end of the day. So, be patient — and not too anxious.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Step lightly, with measured gait. There may be a few delicate spots, perhaps a detour you can take. Don't chafe at roadblocks: Regard them as challenges.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

In both thoughts and actions, be careful not to overstep bounds or underestimate your opponents. If you observe these admonitions, you should have a dandy day.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

There's much more to this day than you may realize at first. Go forth and find that new opportunity you want and tackle it vigorously. Avoid extremes, however.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

A generally good day, but you may run into a few obstacles — which COULD be caused by our own procrastination, disinterest or skepticism. Avoid such negative approaches.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Some brand new opportunities indicated. Your day should be active, stimulating. In all dealings, however, stress diplomacy.

PISCES

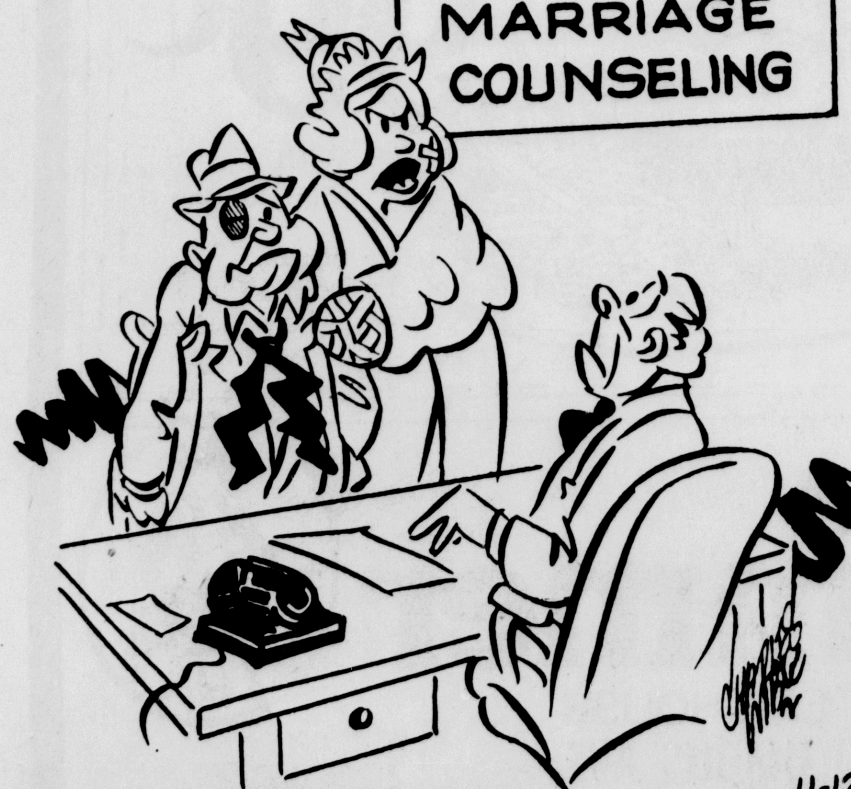

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

A good period for improving on current projects as well as launching new ones. Your integrity, perseverance and quick thinking will lead to success.

YOU BORN TODAY are an extremely gregarious and outgoing individual and, as such, make many enduring friendships — both in your business and social life. You have a brilliant intellect, a spirit of adventure and enterprise, money-making abilities and a fine sense of values. You could make a great success in the business and financial worlds or, if properly educated, could shine in music, literature, the theater or science.

Codex contemplated

By JOEL EPSTEIN
Associated Press Writer
JERUSALEM (AP) — Like the message it carries, the world's oldest complete Hebrew Bible has survived invasions, fire, programs and the passing of centuries.

For more than 1,000 years, Jews have guarded the "aleppo crown" codex, ransoming it from Gentile conquerors, hiding it from marauders and finally smuggling it from Syria to Israel.

Some of the parchment pages are badly faded and about a quarter of it was damaged by fire during an anti-Jewish riot 28 years ago.

The Hebrew University in Jerusalem recently published a facsimile edition of the codex. The publication, of value to Jewish and Christian scholars alike, is the fruit of a $130,000, four-year research program.

The 600-page reproductions, printed by the university's press, cost $400 a copy.

"We have scrolls of parts of the Old Testament which predate the codex," says Prof. Moshe Goshen-Gottstein, who headed the research, "but this is the oldest Old Testament we have. Older ones have vanished in antiquity."

Unlike a scroll, which is printed on only one side, a codex is a manuscript bound like a book, with writing on both sides of the page, Goshen-Gottstein explained in an interview.

He said, "Ritual demands that the Hebrew Bible, unlike secular books, be spelled and read absolutely correctly. The aleppo crown was the first manuscript ever to include instructions on all the correct spellings and readings."

The codex was written at the beginning of the 10th century by the master scribe Aharon Ben Asher, working in Tiberias by the Sea of Galilee. He fills the margins with notes on spelling and cryptic signs to guide future generations of scribes and worshippers.

The sacred volume was carried to Jerusalem, center of the Jewish world, where it became famous throughout the Middle East.

In the 11th century, Jerusalem was sacked by the crusaders, then by the Arab Seljuks. The Jews of the city were massacred and their possessions burned and looted.

Ben Asher's Bible was seized and carried off, apparently to Cairo. There it was held for ransom to the Jewish community.

"There is a basic principle in the Jewish religion that people and books must be ransomed," said Goshen-Gottstein. So the Jews raised the money and bought the book for the Jewish library of Cairo.

In the 14th century, the volume was taken to the Syrian city of Aleppo. There it received its present name — the "aleppo crown" — and became enshrined in the main synagogue of the large Jewish community.

The crown remained in Aleppo for more than 500 years. Then, during the Israeli war of independence in 1948, a mob of enraged Syrians broke into the synagogue, tore at the manuscript and set it ablaze.

But only about a quarter was burned. The charred parchments were rescued and hidden away. About 20 years ago, it was smuggled out of Syria into Israel.

Presbyterians promote peers

On November 7, the congregation of the First Presbyterian Church elected officers for the coming year and adopted an initial budget for 1977.

Those elected to the session of the church for a three year term were, Paul Crosby, Miss Marjorie Evans, Mrs. Jane Rankin, and Harold Vail. These officials will replace the following members whose terms are expiring: Mrs. Marguerite Jenkins, Rollo Marchant, Tom Rankin, and Mrs. Janet Rex.

Joe Giebelhouse, Richard Glass, Mrs. Melanie Merriman, and Jim Purcell were elected to the board of deacons for three year terms, and they replace Lester Bower, Debbie Dunn, Larry Lloyd, and Bill Pool. Mrs. Elizabeth Miller was elected as deacon to fill the unexpired term of Hank Shaffer.

The board of trustees received three newly elected officials. They were Lowell Fichner, Joe Shoemaker, and Bruce Strickling, and they replace Charles Coffey, Mrs. Harriet Coil, and Mrs. Judy Cornwell.

Elected to the youth council to serve until graduation were Andy Merriman and Lori Wilson.

The budget for 1977, totaling $66,500 was presented by Larry Moss on behalf of the budget commission of the church session. A total of 16 members of the congregation drew up the budget. Mrs. Annabel Thompson was in charge of the committee.

Meetings marked

A "miracle revival" has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. nightly in the American Legion Hall, 212 N. Fayette St., with Don Young and Larry Woodson as featured evangelists.

The meetings, which will commence Monday and continue through Nov. 17 are slated to illustrate "the gifts of the spirit in operation."

REMEMBER THE SABBATH DAY TO KEEP IT HOLY!

Genesis 1 & 2

In the beginning God created the heaven and earth. And God said let us make man in our image, and after our likeness and let them have dominion over everything. Chapter 1 and verse 26. Adam and Eve were created on the 6th day of God's creation. After his image and likeness.

If man weren't created in this fashion, evolutionists are saying that God was an ape and we're his little monkeys!

God's people keep his holy sabbath because, after man and woman were created, they entered into the rest of the 7th day. The seventh day sabbath or rest day is a sign of creation. Join in the rest of God's people in restoring God's holy sabbath.

Evolution is taught in school why not teach the 4th commandment of God in your churches? Read Genesis Chapter 2 verse 1 thru 4, then send me more of your prayer requests.

Christmas club checks generous

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP) — A computer at the Key City Bank and Trust Co. sent out checks this week to 25 Christmas club members that were a million dollars bigger than they should have been.

"I still have my check — but I haven't tried to cash it," said a surprised Mary Sweeney, whose husband is cement mason. "I'm having a lot of fun showing it around."

Key City vice-president Jack Roach said the million-dollar errors were made at the check-punching machine.

Bank employees called club members as soon as they discovered the error to advise them the checks would be cashed for the proper amount if they were brought in.

"They didn't say what the error was," said Mrs. Sweeney. "You can imagine my shock when my check was for $1,000,256.25."

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — Archie Bunker a writer? No way. But Carroll O'Connor, who plays America's most famous blue collar combatant, has been at the typewriter of late, tussling with the muse.

He's writing — and will star in — TV's version of "The Last Hurrah," Edwin O'Connor's hit 1956 novel about Boston politics and a fine old rogue of a mayor who tosses his derby in the ring one last time.

The book became a 1958 movie starring Spencer Tracy. But actor O'Connor and Columbia Pictures Television say the version being made for NBC is a fresh one, not simply a remake of the movie.

It came about this way, says O'Connor the actor, no relation to O'Connor the novelist: "My agent brought me the book and wanted me to do the part (of Mayor Frank Skeffington, the book's central figure)."

"I say okay, but I wanted to see the Tracy movie. So I did. I didn't think I could repeat what I saw on the screen, so I said, 'Let me see the old screenplay ... maybe what was on the screen wasn't the screenplay.'"

But it was. Whereupon O'Connor commenced writing a new version directly from the book, incorporating aspects of the novel he says he feels either were lacking or overplayed in the movie.

For example, he says, "I'm going to keep the bigotry Edwin O'Connor had in the novel, but I'm going to play it as an undertone rather than as the main theme."

O'Connor said he'll probably start filming the movie next March or April.

Cash awards being offered for non-commercial floats

A total of $250 is being offered groups which enter non-commercial floats in the 1976 Christmas parade. Any non-profit group entering a float which is handmade by its members is eligible.

The fund for float awards has been increased by $100 through a contribution by the Retail Merchants Association, an arm of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce.

The money appropriated by the merchants will be in addition to cash awards made by the Chamber of Commerce itself. The Chamber of Commerce will award $100 for the "best of show" for non-commercial floats and $50 for second place. The Retail Merchants Association will award $75 for the non-commercial float which is best in keeping with the theme "Christmas Down Home." The merchants will award $25 to the float which finishes second in this category.

Other categories which will be judged include the "most colorful" and the float which carries the "best costumed characters." Plaques will be awarded to first and second place in each category, but as yet there are no funds available for cash awards in these other divisions.

The merchants association hopes that other segments of the Chamber membership, industrial firms agricultural concerns or others will consider sponsoring similar cash awards.

The merchants purpose in offering monetary awards is to promote greater interest in homemade floats. There is a strong sense of cooperation and pride evident among members of groups which have taken the time to create their own floats in the past. The merchants would like to encourage others to become involved in this way.

The parade is scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday, December 4. Those who wish to participate with marching units or floats are asked to contact the Chamber of Commerce (335-0761) as soon as possible.

Clowns to participate and distribute candy along the parade route are needed. Anyone willing to serve in this capacity is also asked to contact the Chamber of Commerce.

Sludge bacteria fights illness

BOSTON (AP) — A group of Cleveland medical researchers is examining the possibility of using simple bacteria from sewage plant sludge in place of expensive artificial kidneys.

In a paper presented at the convention of the Alliance for Engineering in Medicine and Biology, the group said it has used bacteria in lab experiments to remove important poisons from urine, the first step toward showing the idea is workable.

The bacteria would perform the function of a normal kidney. The bacteria might be taken as pills, or react with the blood outside the body, much like an artificial kidney, or be planted in some other way in the body.

Kidneys, acting as filters, remove the body's waste products from the blood and put them in urine. Without a kidney, waste products build up, eventually killing the patient.

The leader of the Cleveland group, Paul S. Malchesky, a chemist in charge of the metabolic section of the Cleveland Clinic, said in an interview that full-scale use of bacteria to replace artificial kidneys and kidney transplants was perhaps "five, 10, 25 years down the road."

In his experiment, Malchesky mixed small amounts of bacteria solutions obtained from a Cleveland plant, with a bit less than a quart of normal urine, a little less than an adult's normal daily output.

Averaging 70 batches together, the bacteria, by "eating" it, removed 74 per cent of the urea and 64 per cent of the uric acid, important poisons, in up to four days.

In some batches, the bacteria "ate" all the urea much more quickly, and Malchesky believes the variability was the result of contamination of his equipment, which he made no attempt to sterilize.

Malchesky noted that in batches of a quart at a time, the bacteria could not remove enough urea and uric acid, or other important substances, to match the performance of normal or artificial kidneys.

Metric measurements to change transportation industry

When the American motorist slides behind the wheel of his car in the coming years and rolls it onto the road, he's going to find that a number of things are quite different than what he is used to today.

That's because the conversion to the metric system of measurements is going to change the transportation industry just as it is going to change so many other aspects of our lives.

The way he measures distance, the way he buys gasoline and the way the home tinkerer works on his car are all going to be revised by America's adoption of the metric system.

Dr. Charles Thompson, professor of education at the University of Louisville and an expert on the metric system, recently outlined some of the ways our thinking patterns are going to be revised in this area.

The most obvious difference is going to be in the measurement of distances. No longer will travelers see roadsigns maps telling him he's 75 miles from Indianapolis; instead, those signs and maps will say he's 121 kilometers away. (A kilometer is about .62 mile.)

"It will probably be a little difficult at first," Dr. Thompson said of adapting to the new system. "But people are going to have to learn to think in terms of kilometers instead of miles."

Initially, he said, most states will probably follow the lead of states like Ohio, which has erected signs that are dually marked — that is, signs that give both distances and legal speed limits in both miles and kilometers.

This, he said, is the smoothest way to ease into learning how kilometers relate to the more familiar miles. But eventually, he added, those signs will come down and will be replaced by others that give only metric measurements. Drivers who have not paid proper attention will find themselves either hopelessly confused or trying to do some difficult mathematical conversions in their heads.

"But for someone who is reasonably well aware of what it's all about, it shouldn't be too much of a problem," Dr. Thompson assured. "Distances don't mean that much to the average driver, anyway."

"Most drivers think in terms of how long it will take to get somewhere rather than how far it is."

Therefore, he explained, the main thing most motorists need to know is that, if they obey the speed limit they can travel about 90 kilometers in an hour; or they can travel that last 121 kilometers to Indianapolis is about an hour and 20 minutes.

But distances and speed limits won't be the only things that will change, Dr. Thompson went on. Possibly the biggest headache motorists will encounter will occur when they pull into a gas station.

They won't find gasoline selling for 56.9 cents per gallon, because there won't be any gallons. With the changeover, gasoline, like all other liquids, will sell by the liter.

It is easy to remember that a liter is a little larger than a quart (1.06 quarts, to be exact); but it may be a "bit of a cultural shock," Thompson said, the first time a driver encounters a sign advertising gasoline for 15.9 cents — per liter.

And it might also be a shock the first time he fills up his small import and sees the pump pouring 35 liters of gas into his tank.

Tire pressures won't be measured in pounds per square inch any more, because there won't be any pounds or inches. Just what the new standard will be hasn't been decided yet; but it will probably be kilograms per square centimeter or something similar, the U of L professor said.

The shade-tree mechanic will have to throw out most of his old tools and buy a new set of metric tools. That's because American automobiles of the future — like their present-day foreign counterparts — will be built to metric scale.

As a matter of fact, one U.S. automobile — the Chevette — is virtually all metric right now, and the auto companies are tooling up for the complete metric switch already.

Naturally, this means that speedometers and odometers will register kilometers rather than miles. So used-car buyers of the future should remember that a car with 100,000 on the odometer may not be the clunker that it would appear at first glance. After all, those 100,000 kilometers only represent about 62,000 miles.

The aircraft industry will be affected by the new system, too. But Dr. Thompson emphasized that the change there will be a good deal more gradual than in almost any other field.

"The aviation industry is so critical, they're proceeding with extreme caution. They're not about to make any hasty changeover that will effect so many people's lives," he said.

The designs of the aircraft themselves are expected to go metric quite soon. But such things as instruments, ground control signals, runway dimensions and even some thermometers will probably move into the metric field much more slowly in order to make certain that pilots and ground controllers won't be faced with too much new information too rapidly.

But for the average American, learning metrics is much like the process of driving a car. At first he is going to feel awkward and uncomfortable, and he may feel that it is something he will never get used to.

But eventually, if he sticks with it, dealing with metric measurements will be as easy and natural as handling the English system is now.

NEXT: Where did the metric system come from, and why did the United States take so long to adopt it? The next story in this series will take a look at these questions.

Mobile discotheque on music scene

By PETER J. BOYER

Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — If you have $500 and understanding neighbors, you can bring the pelvic gyrations and power-driven boogie of the disco phenomenon right into your living room, jive-talking deejay and all.

Mobile disco has arrived. Wayne Rosso and Jim Hurlbut, two former record company salesman, think they have devised a means of getting a piece of the $4 billion disco industry.

"One per cent of it would be all right with us," Rosso said. "One-half of one per cent," corrected Hurlbut.

A year ago they put $50,000 into two mobile disco units, each a giant stereo set that looks something like a juke box equipped with flashing lights.

"We look like a discotheque," Rosso said. "We actually recreated the entire mood, feel, lighting, special effects — everything."

The enterprise, dubbed "Let's Go Disco," offers a pool of disc jockeys who can "give you Big Band, Glenn Miller-type stuff, if you want that, or our guys can mix it up, give you top-40, disco, oldies, the whole thing," Rosso said.

Like their stationary counterparts across the country, mobile disco deejays alter the moods and behavior of the dancers with subtle changes in the format.

"The deejays control the whole thing," Hurlbut said. "By choosing the right cut, he can get you to do anything. Boogie? I don't care how lame you are, with the right cut, he can get you to boogie all night."

Customers have ranged from a cardiac unit at a local hospital to motion picture bigwigs looking for a new way to party, Rosso said. "We had (movie producer) Dick Zanuck and (critic) David Sheehan boogying all night long."

Hurlbut and Rosso say they know the disco trend will end, but they're not worried. "There will always be music," Hurlbut said, "and there will always be people who want to dance."

Gas drilling plan gains look

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An official of the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio says the commission is interested in a Youngstown firm's proposal which could once again permit natural gas connections for new houses.

The PUCO has scheduled a hearing Nov. 23 on the proposal by Universal Energy Services Inc., which would allow residential connections when "self-help" gas wells are drilled to provide gas for the subdivision.

John Borrow, utilities director for the commission, said the PUCO sees the idea as a method which not only would serve consumers but which could increase gas drilling and exploration in the state.

"I would say if everything Universal says they can do can be shown, the project is probably a good 'one,' Borrow said.

Universal asked the PUCO to relax its present ban on new natural gas connections to allow the "self-help" drilling program.

Universal said it plans to build "several thousand" new homes in northeast Ohio, fueled by natural gas wells drilled as part of the project. Seven wells already have been drilled, and more will follow, said Stephen R. Vrable, president and founder of the firm.

"We hope to expand this concept throughout the state eventually," he said.

The PUCO banned new gas connections for residential customers of Columbia Gas of Ohio in 1972 because of the growing natural gas shortage. New residential connections by East Ohio Gas Co. in northern Ohio were terminated at the end of last year.

Vrable said the self-help program would be a boon to potential homeowners, now resistant to the high heating cost of all-electric houses, and to the housing industry.

"In my area, 37 per cent of the people who build houses are out of work because buyers want gas heat," said Vrable, a former marketing official of East Ohio Gas.

He said homes built under the plan would cost about $1,000 extra because of the gas wells, but claimed savings in heating costs would defray that investment in a year.

Industries in Ohio, including the General Motors Corp. and the Ohio Manufacturers Association, have filed formal objections to the plan with the PUCO, claiming it is "unjust, unreasonable and unlawful."

Their legal briefs note that Universal would be required only to make a "best effort" to supply natural gas for its homes. If insufficient gas is drilled, the residential customers would have first priority, along with existing residential customers, to regular gas supplies.

That would put an additional burden on industries which are subject to gas curtailment during periods of short supply, the industry representatives say.

"I'm offended by the proposal," said Sheldon Taft, manufacturers' association counsel.

Theft, break-in reports investigated by officers

A theft of approximately 30 used batteries valued at $60 from the Cartwright Salvage Co., 760 Robinson Road, was reported to Washington C.H. police officers Thursday.

The batteries were allegedly stolen from a storage shed on the salvage yard on the company, sometime between Nov. 3 and Wednesday.

Routine patrol early Friday morning by Washington C.H. Police Ptl. Anthony Wilson disclosed signs of a probable break-in attempt at the offices of two Washington C.H. physicians.

Wilson reported that a back door glass on the J.H. Persinger office, 630 Highland Ave., was broken by an unknown object, though nothing appeared to be missing from inside the office.

A window at the rear of the Dr. Marvin Roszmann office, 1235 Dayton Ave., had been pulled open causing the crank mechanism to break, Wilson also stated. Nothing from the office was reported missing.

Nelson McCann Jr., 916 Sycamore St., told police officers that his car was entered by unknown subjects Thursday night, though nothing was removed.

Local volunteers attend VA meet

Miss Helen L. Slavens, executive secretary of the Fayette County chapter of the American Red Cross, and Mrs. Howard Osborne, 511 E. Temple St., recently attended the 30th anniversary meeting of the voluntary service advisory committee at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Chillicothe.

The committee, composed of representatives of 37 veterans, fraternal and civic organizations, first met in 1946 to plan community participation in the health care program for hospitalized veterans.

Mrs. Osborne was among the honored guests at the observance and was presented a certificate in recognition of her 20 years of service to the veterans as a volunteer of the Fayette County chapter.

Dorsets capture coveted honors

Maple Grove Dorsets won champion ram, champion ewe and premier exhibitor at the Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina state fairs held in September and October.

Maple Grove Dorsets will be exhibited at the North American Livestock Show in Louisville, Ky. November 12 - 20. Cindi Grover has trained a ewe to lead by halter and will participate in the ladies lead class wearing a 100 per cent wool outfit.

Traffic Court

Two fines were levied upon a Kentucky man for his violation of two traffic codes, as Judge John P. Case presided Wednesday during a traffic session of Washington C.H. Municipal Court.

Garland T. Matthews, 44, of Covington, Ky., was fined $50 for driving without a driver's license, and $25 for a speeding conviction.

Municipal Court

A total of $110 in fines was imposed upon a Columbus man Wednesday in Washington C.H. Municipal Court, for his conviction on eight counts of check fraud.

Judge John P. Case found Howard B. Payton, 22, of Columbus, guilty of having passed eight bad checks to various service stations, department stores, and hardware stores in Washington C.H. from July through October.

Arrested Tuesday by Washington C.H. police officers, Howard was sentenced to 10 days in jail on each count, with all the time suspended provided he does not violate the law for two years. He was also ordered to make restitution for all the checks.

Firemen check injury report

Washington C.H. firemen were summoned to two investigations Thursday.

Firemen were at the B.E. Kelley residence, 832 Washington Ave., to assist Kelley who had fallen down his stairs and was unable to get up at 6:02 p.m. Thursday. Kelley was not treated for injury at the time.

Homer Bireley, 529 S. Fayette St., called firemen at 8 p.m. Thursday to check a broken light switch which had come loose from a wall in the home.

The regular meeting of the Bloomingburg village council will be held at 8 p.m. Tuesday, November 16 in the village town hall. Bloomingburg Mayor Max E. Grim said the meeting date was changed because of the November 2 general election.

Car overturns on Palmer Road

County driver slightly hurt in rural mishap

A Fayette County man suffered minor injuries Thursday after his car overturned one and a half times and came to rest on its top, according to Fayette County sheriff's deputies.

Traveling west on the Palmer Road, Jerry N. Davis, 29, of Rt. 3, Allen Road, reportedly lost control of his car while rounding a curve located just north of the Harmony Road at 4:05 p.m. Thursday.

The car went left of center, came back over to the right berm and flipped over before landing on its top in the middle of the Palmer Road, sheriff's deputies said.

Davis showed signs of injury but was not treated at the time, according to the report. His car was demolished and he was charged by sheriff's deputies with reckless operation.

Washington C.H. police officers reported that slight damage was the result of a 4:46 p.m. Thursday accident in the municipal parking lot on S. Fayette Street.

A car driven by Alfred B. Coe, 62, of 466 Carolyn Road, was in the process of backing westward when it collided with a car driven by Shirley J. Kassell, 31, of Columbus, which was also in the process of backing at the time.

No movement seen in Vietnam talks

PARIS (AP) — Little or no progress is expected before January in the talks opening today in Paris between the United States and Vietnam.

U.S. spokesmen say any major decisions on relations with Vietnam must await President-elect Jimmy Carter's inauguration. Observers also say the Vietnamese Communist party is expected to redefine the reunited nation's foreign policy at its congress in Hanoi next month.

No improvement in Vietnamese-American relations appears likely after the change in U.S. administrations unless Hanoi meets the American demand for a full accounting of the 800 U.S. servicemen listed as missing in action in Vietnam.

This was promised in the 1973 Paris peace agreement, and President Ford has made the information the precondition for progress toward normal relations. Carter during the campaign approved Ford's stand.

Union says GM's offer falls short

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers, charging that General Motors' initial economic offer falls short of the industry pattern, has countered with new proposals on a three-year contract.

"The GM offer contains many shortfalls and we have made proposals on each of these," UAW Vice President Irving Bluestone said Thursday following a 45-minute maintainable negotiation session.

Bluestone said one of the proposals involved the union's demand for additional paid days off, ultimately to achieve a four-day work week.

A union spokesman said one shortcoming in the company's offer was a failure to make the contract retroactive. The union, which had indefinitely extended the old contract, wants the new pact to take effect Sept. 20, a week after the old accord's original expiration date.

The union, which would not identify any other "shortfalls," has set a deadline of midnight next Thursday for either a settlement on a new accord or a 21-state walkout by 390,000 hourly workers.

Both sides, however, have said there still is sufficient time to reach an agreement without a strike.

The two sides also held subcommittee meetings Thursday on insurance, seniority, preferential hiring and health and safety matters. They also agreed to commission a joint passing yardage. Schlichter, a junior, is 86 for 126 passing for 1,567 yards. Heiny, a senior, 70 of 131 passing for 938 yards. They are the only league quarterbacks who have completed over 50 per cent of their passes.

New OSU cage pilot emphasizes defense

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Eldon Miller makes it clear what his objective is in his first Ohio State basketball coaching season, which begins tonight with an exhibition against a touring Australian squad.

"We're determined not to let the opposition score. What makes basketball is defensive enthusiasm," said the man taking over the Buckeyes from the resigned Fred Taylor.

Looking at his first squad's lack of height, Miller said, "Someone may post us low and hurt us. We've got to get team defense close to the basket."

"Our personnel situation is that we have to play with some great athletes who are short. The tallest are rookies," he said.

One of those freshmen, 6-foot-7 Jim Ellinghausen from Plymouth, Mich., has earned a starting job against the Australians. Mark Hetz, a 6-8 newcomer from Defiance, is expected to play a great deal too.

The other exhibition starters will be a trio of seniors, 6-6 Clance Hammond of Columbus, 6-3 Mike Daugherty of Bedford and 6-foot Larry Bolden from Cleveland, the team's top returning scorer.

But Miller puts little emphasis on a first unit, saying, "We have people on the bench who will play as much as the starters. We're so small we can't play tired."

The Buckeyes' new coach ticks off the names of Hetz, 6-3 junior Jud Wood of Columbus, 6-5 sophomore Fred Poole of Columbus, 6-3 Mike Cline of Millersburg and 6-6 sophomore Rick Smith of Vienna, Va., as dependable reserves.

"I'm concerned about our scoring inside and our defense close to the basket," said Miller, always an advocate of an aggressive defense. He learned that in his playing days at Wittenberg for Coach Ray Mears.

Can Miller improve on last year's 6-

20 record and lastplace finish in the conference?

Miller concedes he has no idea how the Buckeyes will do in the conference, but said, "The Big Ten is the best in the country and it's going to continue to be that way. If you want to be the best in the country, you better be the best in the Big Ten."

As contenders, he likes defending champion Indiana, Michigan, Purdue and possibly Minnesota.

"Indiana has the best big man (Kent Benson) in the country back. Michigan lost only Wayman Britt. Purdue has its best team in years," said Miller.

The Buckeyes start the season officially at home Saturday, Nov. 27, against Butler.

Sisler happy in Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — George Sisler Jr. has good news for senior citizens. At 59, he thinks he's too young to continue as president of the International League.

That's why he has accepted an offer to become general manager of the new Columbus professional baseball franchise and the refurbished $5 million Franklin County Stadium, home of the Pittsburgh Pirates' new IL farm club.

Sisler returns to the post he held in Columbus during the declining years (1953-54) of the St. Louis Cardinals' working agreement. Only his title is the same.

Why quit the relatively secure job of league president to head a new baseball operation in a city which abandoned the game nearly seven years ago?

"I feel young enough that I want to become involved in something more active than being a league president," he replied. "I miss the competition, the scouting, the day-to-day things that made the administrative aspect of baseball so fascinating to me.

"I think perhaps I became a league president when I was too young (48)," the son of Hall of Famer George Sisler Sr. continued. "...There were too many days when I had nothing to challenge me.

"Quite frankly, I missed being involved in the immediate business of baseball, something that had been an important of my life ever since I started as a player back in Youngstown of the Middle Atlantic League in 1939."

At an early age he realized he did not have the playing potential of his father or his two major league brothers. So he opted for a baseball administrative career.

"As league president," he said, "I've seen a lot of ways of doing things in baseball. And, to be candid, I had been thinking of seeking some more active role in baseball for several years."

"When the Columbus opportunity came up...and I saw what the county was doing to what had been one of minor league baseball's greatest parks, I knew I had to consider the job.

"It's just fabulous what they have done with that place. The remodeled stadium—actually, that's a misnomer because it's almost new—will become a showplace of baseball. It will be an example everyone in the minors will watch and want to emulate."

"The affiliation with the Pirates is ideal. Columbus is Mr. (John) Galbreath's home. There's no question that he and the Pirates will provide a competition Triple-A club in Columbus. They had an excellent working relationship for years before the ball club left Columbus."

"And that was simply because the ball park was no longer adequate for them to keep a team there."

Bjorn Borg favored in Stockholm Open

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Bjorn Borg may be seeded second to Jimmy Connors in the $150,000 Stockholm Open Tennis Tournament, but there is no doubt he is the sentimental favorite of the crowds.

Before advancing to today's quarter-finals with a hardfought 6-2, 6-7, 7-6 triumph over Britain's John Lloyd Thursday, Borg was honored in a colorful ceremony by King Carl XVI Gustaf and Queen Silvia of Sweden. Borg and the other members of Sweden's Davis Cup team were presented a royal gold medal of first class in recognition of Sweden winning the Davis Cup for the first time last year.

Panthers favored over Lions

WCH-MT highlight last night of season

By MARK REA

Record-Herald Sports Editor

The South Central Ohio League wraps up its football season this week with two league games and three non-league encounters.

For the forecasters, many of them can boast because Miami Trace, everyone's pre-season favorite, has the SCOL crown on ice. All that remains is a possible gold football for the Trace trophy case.

This week, the fabled Fayette County crown is up for grabs as Washington C.H. and Miami Trace go at each other. This game could mean the upset of the year or a 10-0 season.

This game, called everything from a bugaboo to a grudge match, is really none of those things. As Panther head coach Fred Zechman said, "There are no strangers involved."

The game is held between two schools separated by only four miles of asphalt. The team members have friends on the opposite side. The only real benefit from winning this game is being able to say, "We beat you in football this year."

The game will bring about some of the best match-ups of the season. Quarterbacks Mark Heiny and Art Schlichter will be proving why they are the two best passers in the SCOL.

Running backs Jeff Elliott and Dan Gifford will be looking for daylight and fullbacks Keith Wightman and Rex Coe will be trying to give Elliott and Gifford some.

Receivers Bill Hanners and Terry Wilson will be showing the county fans their glue-like hands that have served them well this season. Bill Warnock and Scott Johnson will display their talents for playing defensive end and containing the quarterback.

Sam Grooms will show why he might be the best center in the league while Bret Shaw will show why he might be the best at defensive halfback.

This game will hold some of the league's best players and for about two hours tonight, the fans will be able to watch the SCOL's best in action against each other.

The other league game tonight is Hillsboro at Circleville. The non-league games are Greenfield McClain at Frankfort Adena, Wilmington at Teays Valley, and Madison Plains at Springboro.

Channel 3 will provide a live broadcast of the Washington C.H.-Miami Trace football game Friday night. The live broadcast will be audio only and the game will be telecast on Saturday afternoon. WCHO Radio will also provide an audio broadcast of the game Friday evening from Gardner Park.

MIAMI TRACE AT WASH. C.H.

The fabled county crown is on the line as well as a gold football for the Panthers.

The Panthers have a tremendous wealth of talent starting with quarterback Art Schlichter. Schlichter has passed for over 1500 yards this season and has completed almost 70 per cent of his throws.

Seniors Rex Coe and Dan Gifford are breakaway threats in the backfield and junior split end Bill Hanners and tight end Joe Black are definite long bomb threats.

But, the Lions have talent also, with quarterback Mark Heiny. The senior signal-caller, out of the league limelight most of the season because of Schlichter's outstanding year has passed for nearly 1000 yards.

Tailback Jeff Elliott is a threat to score everytime he handles the ball and wingback Terry Wilson has 25 receptions this year for 317 yards and five touchdowns.

The defenses stack up nearly identical with a slight edge going to Trace. Neither team will "out-talent" the other, but after 10 p.m. on Friday night, the Panthers will be seeing gold. Miami Trace 28, Washington C.H. 7.

HILLSBORO AT CIRCLEVILLE

Hillsboro has had it rough this season and so have the Tigers. Picked to be at the top of the SCOL standings, Circleville hasn't won in four weeks. Hillsboro's only league victim this year is Madison Plains.

Circleville has been outscored 119-19 in their last three games. Seniors like Frank Merrill and Bill Mogan do not want to wind up their grid careers with a loss after winning years with Biff Bumgarner and company.

The Indians, faltering last week against Zanesville Rosecrans, have had numerous injuries and have even contemplated dropping out of the SCOL.

They will be sailing into a mean pack of Tigers Friday night and the Indians should be mauled. Circleville 26, Hillsboro 0.

McCLAIN AT ADENA

After losing all title hopes last week with a 42-3 loss to Miami Trace, coach Fred Brisker and his boys will be looking to take it out on someone.

Frankfort Adena, ranked 15th in their region of the Class A computer poll, don't seem much of a problem to the Tigers.

Look for Tony Anderson to have the ball much of the time looking for a 1000-yard season and Steve Weaver to throw a lot to Eric Dunson. The results should not be good for Adena. McClain 33, Adena 6.

WILMINGTON AT TEAYS VALLEY

The Hurricane had a big game last week against Madison Plains, killing them 56-6.

Gary Williams and Bruce McKee had outstanding performances in that game and they should get the same kind of job done this time out.

Teays Valley is only ranked 43rd in the Harbin computer poll in Class AA while Wilmington is 32nd in their region of Class AAA.

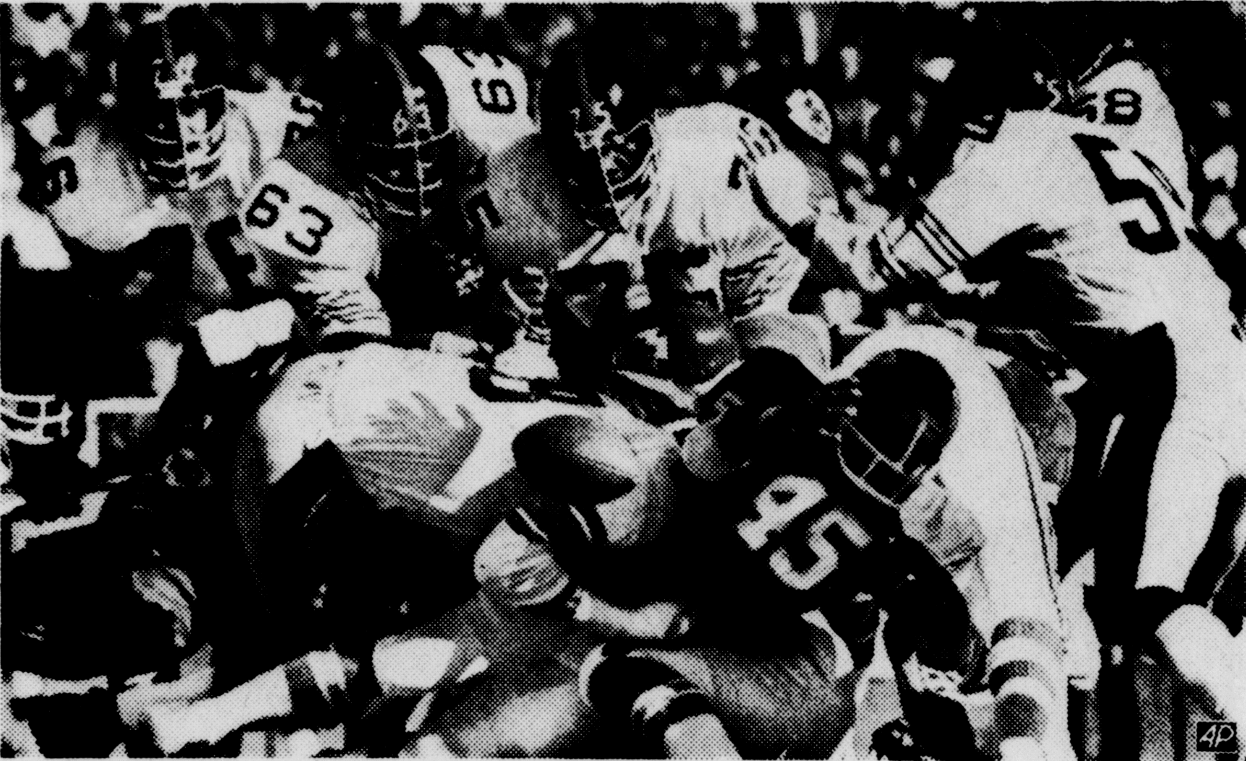

Look for Williams to throw, run, and kick for a lot of points and McKee to run over 100 yards. Wilmington 35, Teays Valley 7.

PLAINS AT SPRINGBORO

Madison Plains, at 0-6 in SCOL play, hasn't exactly been a whirlwind on the gridiron. But, with only 25 players left of the 40 that began the season, they haven't done badly.

Springboro is ranked 39th in Region 8 of Class AA in the Harbin computer poll while Plains is ranked 60th in the same region, only eight spots out of last place.

All this adds up to a Springboro win. Who am I to argue with Jack Harbin and his computer? Springboro 21, Madison Plains 8.

THE STEEL CURTAIN — Pittsburgh Steelers' John Banaszak (76) Ernie Holmes (63), Joe Greene (75) and Jack Ham (59), watch as teammate L.C. Greenwood hits Kansas City Chief's Pat McNeil (45) who fumbles the ball during a game at Kansas City. The ball was recovered by Jack Lambert (58) of the Steelers. The Chiefs were humbled by the Steelers, 45-0.

Wittenberg seeking fourth conference berth in row

Wittenberg, if it beats or ties host Muskingum Saturday, can earn a fourth straight berth in the Ohio Conference football championship game.

And Dave Maurer, the coach of the defending national Division II champion Tigers, likes the idea of qualifying against 1975 OC winner Muskingum.

"I think it's appropriate that since we lost the conference championship to Muskingum last year," he said, "we would have to beat the defending champs to win it back."

If it wins, Wittenberg would finish its Red Division work with a 5-0 record. If the Tigers lose, they would be 4-1 with Muskingum and Ohio Northern, providing the Polar Bears win at Heidelberg.

In the latter case, Ohio Northern would earn a chance to face Blue Division champion Baldwin-Wallace in the OC title game Saturday, Nov. 27, at Berea. Muskingum and Wittenberg would be eliminated because of their 1975 championship appearances.

Meanwhile, Ohio State and Ball State can lock up major conference championships.

The Buckeyes, eighth ranked nationally, can be certain of a Big Ten title share by winning at Minnesota. Ball State can claim the undisputed Mid-American crown if it trims visiting Western Michigan.

In the Hoosier-Buckeye, Findlay and Defiance still nurse hopes of a title share with Hanover going into the final round of games Saturday.

For that to happen, Findlay has to master invading Hanover and Defiance must win at Manchester. The three would finish with 6-2-0 league records and split the championship.

In other Mid-American games Saturday, Kent State (3-2 league) plays at Miami (2-3) and Central Michigan (3-2) at Northern Illinois (0-3).

Main independent action has Ohio University (6-3 over-all) at Cincinnati (6-2), Bowling Green (5-4) entertaining Southern Illinois (6-3), Toledo (2-7) against visiting Marshall (5-4) at night, Akron (7-2) at Western Kentucky, Dayton (4-5) at Temple, Ashland (6-3) at Wayne State and Youngstown (3-6) at Central State (6-2).

In other contests, BaldwinWallace is at Mount Union, Denison at Ohio Wesleyan, Otterbein at Marietta, Wooster at Capital, Centre at Kenyon, John Carroll at Oberlin, Bluffton at Wilmington and Case Reserve at Hiram.

MIAMI TRACE RESERVES — The Miami Trace reserve volleyball team finished their 1976 season with a 8-4 record. The Suellen Radabaugh coached team won their final games over Washington C.H.

Ken Riley ponders John Hadl's moves

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals cornerback Ken Riley is spending this week inside John Hadl's head.

Riley, an ex-quarterback who successfully made the jump to defense, is making mental preparations for Sunday's National Football League game with the Houston Oilers.

He has an strong idea what the Bengals top-ranked pass defense can expect from Hadl, who is replacing the injured Dan Pastorini.

"John loves to throw the football," said Riley, the Bengals' all time interception leader with 34.

"He might not have the arm strength of Pastorini, but he makes up for it in smarts. After 15-16 years in the league, he is very good at reading defenses," said the 29-year-old native of Bartow, Fla.

"We think he'll probably throw a lot of inside stuff," said Riley. "We've got to stop the deep pass, the quick stuff that Ken Burrough or Billy (White Shoes) Johnson might break loose on."

Riley is a key reason why the Bengals have had the top defensive secondary in the AFC for the past two years.

"We had the top pass defense in the league last year, but nobody heard much about it," said Riley, who shares the club lead in interceptions with Tommy Casanova. Both have five thefts.

The Bengals, with 16 interceptions in nine games, are threatening the club record of 27 set in 1971.

"Coy Bacon has made the big difference," said Riley. "The pass rush is the key." The Bengals front four has more than 30 sacks so far to rank among the NFL's top six in that category.

BOSTON (AP) — With AllStar center Dave Cowens still in seclusion while on a non-paid leave of absence "for personal reasons," the Boston Celtics plan to employ their new 1-2-3 punch tonight in a National Basketball Association game against the New Orleans Jazz.

The Celtics withstood the shock of Cowens' unexpected departure and snapped a fourgame losing streak with a 117-112 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers Wednesday night at the Garden.

Cowens was quoted in a copyrighted story in the Boston Herald American today as saying he left the team to "do all the things I haven't been able to do over the last 10 years."

"I've created quite a stir, I know, but I had to do the right thing. It just got to a point where I felt guilty taking my salary from the Celtics."

"I just wasn't making a contribution or helping the team, I had no motivation or enthusiasm," he was quoted as saying.

Veteran sharpshooter Jo Jo White, sounding the old theatrical theme "the show must go on," went out and scored 28 points against the Lakers.

One hour after the Celtics announced that Cowens had been granted his requested leave "for an indefinite period," Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn made a quick decision. To fill in for Cowens, and to go against 7-foot-3½ Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, Heinsohn started seldom-used Jimmy Ard.

Champions return in cross country

BEACHWOOD, Ohio (AP) — Both the defending individual champion and the defending team champion will be back to defend their NCAA Division III Cross-Country titles here Saturday at Highland Hills Country Club.

Vince Fleming of the University of Lowell, Lowell, Mass. will try to protect his title, as will North Central College of Naperville, Ill.

A field of more than 650 runners is expected for the race, covering 8,000 meters — about five miles.

Tribe chiefs seek meet with two players

CLEVELAND (AP) — Ted Bonda, president of the Cleveland Indians, says he will try to set up a meeting with free agents Wayne Garland and Don Baylor next week.

Bonda would not comment Thursday on a report that both players have been offered contracts worth about $1 million over a period of four or five years.

Jerry Kapstein, who represents both players, also declined comment on the Cleveland bid.

Little Brown Jug founder stricken

Smart, one of three founders of the middle jewel of 3-year-old pacing's Triple Crown, designed the half-mile track at the Delaware County Fairgrounds, where the race is staged annually. He twice drove Jug winners.

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

A hacksaw is one of those tools which you don't need very often, but when you do, there is no substitute. Since it is relatively inexpensive, it is something that belongs in every home workshop.

Used principally for cutting metal, the hacksaw must be used properly in order to obtain effective results. No matter how much experience you have had in using the ordinary crosscut saw for wood, it will do you little good in learning the techniques of using a hacksaw. In fact, if you attempt to use it in the same manner as a crosscut saw, you will run into nothing but trouble.

A crosscut saw is used at an angle. A hacksaw is held and used horizontally. A crosscut saw is pushed and pulled. A hacksaw is pushed only, since it is meant to cut only on the forward stroke. Finally, wood can often be cut with a crosscut saw while the wood is being held with one hand and a knee. A hacksaw should only be used on metal which is firmly in place or held that way in a vise.

In selecting a hacksaw, it is wise to get one which has an adjustable frame so that it will hold blades of different sizes. The blades are rated by their pitch, which means the number of teeth per inch. A blade said to have a pitch of 18 is one with 18 teeth per inch. Those with 14 and 18 teeth per inch work best with heavier metals. When you buy a hacksaw, get at least two and preferably three or four blades with different pitches.

A blade is always placed in the frame with the teeth pointing away from the handle. Once the metal has been secured, place one hand on the handle and one hand on the part of the frame the farthest away from you. As you move forward with the saw, apply light pressure for light materials, stronger pressure with heavy materials. Again, a reminder that the blade does its cutting on the forward stroke, so as you bring back the saw, release the pressure entirely so that the saw does not engage the work. Take long, even strokes in a kind of rhythmic action, bringing all or most of the blade's teeth into contact with the metal.

If you have done any work with hacksaw blades, you know that occasionally one of them breaks. There are a number of reasons why this occurs. One is that the tension on the blade was too tight or too loose. The frame has a tension adjustment, usually manipulated with a wingnut. The nut is turned clockwise until it is fairly tight. One part of a turn too much and the blade will have too much tension. One part too little and it will have too little tension. As you begin to cut, if the blade begins to bend, it is likely that there is too little tension. It may sound rather complicated, but after you have used a hacksaw a few times, you will get the knack of it and know immediately when you have tightened the wingnut or other manipulative device just right.

The ordinary hacksaw blade is made of high-speed steel, which is perfect for most cutting jobs. But there are many other types of blades for special purposes, including one called a jeweler's blade for use in a jeweler's hacksaw for cutting very thin metal. Also useful is a minihacksaw, which takes standard blades but has a small, curved frame that enables it to fit in places where an ordinary hacksaw can't be used.

(Thirty five do-it-yourself problems are tackled in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repairs," available by sending $1 to this newspaper at Box 5, Teaneck, N. J. 07666.)

Heavy shelling hits sectors of Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Heavy shelling broke out between the Christian and Moslem sectors of Beirut today despite the presence of thousands of Syrian troops ringing the city to enforce the three-week-old cease-fire.

A crowded market in the Moslem sector received several direct hits that killed a dozen civilians, civil defense rescue teams on the spot reported.

Loudspeaker vans and jeeps toured the area urging the people to get off the streets. The Lebanese Arab army, made up of deserters from the Lebanese army, threatened to strike back "mercilessly" at the Christian half of the city unless the Syrians stopped the Christian bombardment.

"Damn the Arab deterrent forces," said a young boy standing beside the blood of a victim. "Why don't they come here?"

Artillery in the Moslem sector began firing at random into the Christian sector.

It was the second major break in the truce in less than 24 hours. Savage house-to-house fighting broke out Thursday afternoon between Christian militiamen and radical Palestinians in the ravaged downtown commercial center of Beirut, causing many fires in the adjacent port area. Hospitals and militia sources reported more than 15 persons killed, one of the highest tolls since the cease-fire was declared Oct. 21.

Meanwhile, Syrian armored columns

and her old people, there are her grandchildren.

"I think there are 48," she said. "I quit counting. There are 16 great-grandchildren. Just a few."

She now lives alone, although her family is nearby. But that's the way she prefers it.

"As long as I can function I will stay on my own," she said. "I just plan to keep raising my grandchildren. Just to have my children around is all I want."

Woman raises old folks

CLEVELAND (AP) — When 79-year-old Winifred D. Koch finished raising 17 children, she began to get lonely. So, "I started raising old people," she says.

Mrs. Koch raised children of her own and 11 of her late husband's by a previous marriage. She then accepted youngsters for brief periods from an orphanage. And now, she is vice president of the Full Time Club for the elderly in the Cleveland suburb of North Olmsted where she lives.

Besides her children, the orphans were consolidating their hold on the city's rear areas, tearing down street barricades and taking over snipers' nests, in preparation for the dispatch of forces to establish a buffer zone through the middle of the city.

Pierre Gemayel, whose Phalange party has the largest Christian militia, said the fighting and an attempt on the life of Christian politician Raymond Edde were "last-minute desperate attempts to sabotage the peacemaking process in Lebanon."

"But these attempts are doomed because 95 per cent of the Lebanese and Palestinians are for peace," Gemayel said. "The remaining five per cent of radicals can easily be dealt with. Their days are numbered."

Edde, an unsuccessful candidate for president last March, said he was getting out of his car Thursday afternoon when four men in a car pulled up and one of them opened fire with a submachine gun. A bullet grazed his hip.

Other Christian leaders, the leftist Lebanese Moslem command and spokesmen for Palestinian chief Yasir Arafat all denounced the assassination attempt and other cease-fire infractions.

Arafat, the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, was reported to have warned radical Palestinian groups that reject his leadership that his men would disarm them by force if they did not respect the truce and give up their heavy arms.

Low tonight will be in the teens and the lower 20s. Sunday's temperatures will again be mostly in the 30s but by Monday some readings will go into the 40s. This time of year, average highs are around 50 in northern Ohio and in the low to mid 50s in southern Ohio.

Conditions continued cold over Ohio today as well as over much of the northern part of the country. A very strong high pressure was over the Dakotas and, as a result, the air flow across Ohio was from the frigid northwest.

The high will move south to southeast. By Saturday night it will move into the gulf states. At that time, another cold front will move out of Canada toward Ohio. Snow flurries should occur over much of the northern two-thirds of the state today, but by afternoon they should be confined to the northern third.

A trace of snow fell overnight at official observation points. At 6 a.m. temperatures ranged from 17 degrees at Toledo to 32 degrees near Chesapeake.

At Toledo and Findlay the temperatures were close to the record lows for today. Today's highs were to be mostly in the 30s.

Mostly fair Sunday, a chance of snow Monday and clearing Tuesday.
